Opening

Opening

It was a dark and stormy night when nightmares became reality. Oh sorry, actually it was a bright sunny day, but the first day of school is always a bit dreary and nightmarish especially at 7:37a.m. Senior goblins and ghosts came out to scare the freshmen. Zombies--the walking dead-- filed through the hallways into the classrooms. Collapsing into their seats, they entered the dead zone where their minds remained for the hour during the ever so popular Rules-and-Syllabus readings. The bell broke the trance and wild beasts fled for their lives. Carefully, as if afraid to be seen, freshmen scurried to class while scanning for unknown terrors--glancing in every direction, paranoid, hearts racing as they desperately searched for their new classes.

And thus began another PH story. It opened with a tale of pride, honor, harmony, and strength. Students started early to prepare for sports and band with summer practices, in a show of pride. After school opened, most students hit the books in an effort to do honor to themselves and families with their best work. Extracurricular groups formed to join people with similar interests into a harmonious unit.

The stories change each year as characters come and go, but the overall plot stays about the same. The setting remained PHHS, with the antagonists coming at us from all over. A part of the story was screen written for the films in August when "Bless the Child" and the Blue Water Bridge hit the big theater. Okay maybe it's not campfire material, but there is always some drama along with the comedy involved.

But this story is special. Just as it ends for one character, it begins for another, ensuring the story will last and be passed down from generation to generation. A continued story of Pride, Honor, Harmony, and Strength.

Honor Strength

Sarah Edwards, Krystal Pecrach, and the pony walk through the parade.

Each of the four PH students represent one of the four PHHS virtues. Sophomore Kathleen Koschnitcke wears her red and white Varsity jacket and displays her pride for the high school. Senior Jennifer LaTurno wears her National Honor Society officers' robe and displays honor. Senior Andrea Zauner wears her Big Red Marching Machine band uniform and symbolizes harmony. Junior Joseph Wiczko wears his Varsity football uniform and displays strength.

Student Life

Chapter 1

Once upon a time there was a school. The name of this school was PHHS. Now this school was very lonely because there were no students or faculty. The reason they weren't there was because they were on summer vacation! Throughout the summer, as well as during the school year, students take part in an array of activities when not in school. These range from a relaxing walk on a beach to an extreme roller coaster ride. Lately teen thrill seekers have looked for the most extreme and outrageous activities they can find. Some went bungee jumping off the Golden Gate Bridge while others went snowboarding off a cliff in the Rocky Mountains. Wherever adventures are, those people will be found. "[Bungee jumping] was the most intense feeling. You didn't even realize you were falling until the whole experience is over," said Sarajane Eppley about her experience in Gatlinburg, Tennessee. While some people enjoy risky sports, others prefer to busy themselves with work or leisurely vacations. Whatever your pleasure, summer and time out of school added to the rising action of the plot of chapter 1.

While working hard at a car wash for NHS, Bradley Barrett suds up Mrs. Zauner's Durango.

the steep five mile trail. During a camp they had to four hours to try and get to the top.

During Cruise Night, a 2000 yellow Ford Ranger makes its way to the end of the boulevard toward Birchwood Mall.

After an exhausting day at Cedar Point, Emily Reid and Brooke Lixey relax at Days Inn of Sandusky Ohio before taking the three hour ride home. The New attraction, The Millenium Force Roller Coaster was their favorite ride.

Getting together before the school year begins are Brad Marsh, Kellen Lynch, Matthew Everhart, William Moser, Jennifer Beach, Erin Miller, Ryan Mills, and Randi Morrison.

At the Renaissance Festival Angela Zauner meets the Grim Reaper.

Summer

Just having fun

Activities

The day was hot. In fact, it was muggy and sticky, horribly uncomfortable. The second hand on the clock hadn't moved in hours. Because of stiff legs, students ached to stretch cramped muscles, but still the minute hand barely inched forward to 2:50 P.M. on June 8. With the bell summer break began as do vacation, camps, jobs, and sleeping in, and for some of the unfortunate ones.....summer school.

Summer was filled with activities like Boat Night, the Blue Water Festival, Gus Macker 3-on-3 Basketball Tournament and the Classic Car Parade, which brought people of all ages together for large group entertainment. The best memory of the summer was Boat Night for senior Ryan Mills because, he got to "spend time with his friends." Boat Night about 2000 spectators came together the night before the big Port Huron to Mackinac race, the oldest sailboat race in Michigan.

Pain and summer do not usually go into the same sentence but for Senior Nathaniel Edwards it did; he went to J. Robinson Wrestling Camp, and he said that "it's the hardest camp in the United States, so to graduate from it was my high point of the summer", many other wrestlers from Port Huron High School also went.

Money-- that is one thing that high school students need; that is where summer jobs came in. From fast food restaurants kneeling on a roof putting on shingles, to even sitting in an office answering phones. Students applied for all types of occupations. Senior Sarah Fuchs worked at Wal-Mart and enjoyed it because she "had the chance to meet new and exciting people."

To close out the summer days the athletic students who play fall sports started to practice in early August, to get ready for the fall sports season.

Spending good quality time over the summer with friends is important to Sarajane Eppley and Stephanie Halliday-both seniors who enjoy their last summer before going off to college.

Taking a dip in the hot tub Marissa Nill and Melissa Brandimore enjoy the Thomas Edison Inn.

Keeping the elephant company Sarah Fuchs and her sister Claudette Fuchs spend a summer day at the Detroit Zoo.

Seniors: The Class of 2001

"Watch Out! We've Just Begun, We're the Class of '01." We entered the halls of PHHS our freshman year full of energy and potential. We knew nothing at the time about the upcoming mascot issue; we were too busy trying to get through the hallways and remembering our new locker combinations. We blew the upperclassmen away with our float on the Fourth of July, taking the first place rating. The opening of the second Blue Water Bridge was an international event that brought 200,000 people from around the United States and Canada to make the historical walk. To top that, the issue of the Indian mascot raised some problems in our community.

As sophomores we faced many more changes. Dr. Crosby's midyear retirement brought out questions on why he left and worry about his replacement. Mr. Wollen was selected as the new principal. He had been an assistant principal here until 1995-1996 so he knew what it meant to be a Big Red. On a different note, Memorial Stadium celebrated its 50th year with a turn out of about eight thousand spectators for that anniversary game. During Homecoming our castle float gained us second place. "We're the class of '01, two more years and we'll be done!" To end the year, bomb threats began to scare some students out of school, luckily over the summer the tension cooled down.

"01 will be our year, juniors just want outta here!" There was some tension during the year with rumors that our mascot was going to change into a pirate ship. However it soon became very clear that the chief was here to stay. Lack of contracts for teachers also added to our problems. Before, students could come in early in the morning to simply sit in the classroom or ask for some guidance on their homework assignments. That year students discovered locked doors and protests because of the contract issue that ended up hurting the students and adding to our stress. It was decided that the floats would receive cash prizes for the rank they took much to the delight of all. However, we were fairly disappointed with our turtle float that took third place. We ended up taking second place for class of the year. If that was not enough, construction plagued our school and gave many student drivers tardy passes to class as they rushed to get to class on time. The mock crash ended our junior year as a reminder that drinking and driving do not mix.

We entered the halls our senior year with the new thought of passing POD and lasting one more year. Scrambling was done after losing a full time POD teacher. The teacher contract issue was finally solved in time for the school year to commence. Students once again were able to go in and get help in the morning or lounge around before first hour began. The school year began at 7:37 this year, which did not go over well with many students. The site for the senior picture was the steps by the Huron Lightship. The fact that the area was never used for a picture before offered an unique spot for the photograph; along with the ever so popular Huron Lightship. The picture surprisingly took only about forty-five minutes. Our float theme was the gingerbread house from Hansel and Gretel. After all the work was finally complete, we finished with third place to end our senior year. The float was taken apart one last time and the supplies were sold to the underclassmen.

The Millennium and Beyond

Freshmen, Teegan Coney and Amanda York pose in front of a very picturesque Niagara Falls, where the girls enjoyed the view and did some shopping in town. While at Niagara Falls they also visited the beautiful botanical gardens.

Spooky! James Watson, Amber Watson, Charles Mundst, and Melissa Watson perform a difficult balancing act on the stony tip of Skull Rock. The rock is located on Mackinac Island, where the Watson family vacationed during their summer break.

Over Spring Break, Melissa and Cara Brandimore ventured down to the Florida Keys.

For two weeks, the girls and their family enjoyed shopping, diving, and camping in the sun.

Spending a little quality time with Dad: Gordon Clor and Krystal Clor visit the Anchorage Alaskan Zoo.

Trips

Vacations

Whether it's a trek into the jungles of Africa or heading up north for a quiet weekend at Grandma's, Big Reds were seeking out adventure where ever they went. Trips provided relief for stressed out students from the pressures of homework and school in general. For those lucky enough to get away from everything for a while, a vacation was an opportunity to spend some time with family or friends, and possibly even learn a thing or two about the place they visited.

Regardless of where they went, Big Reds seemed to have lots to say about their endeavors. When commenting on a visit to Niagra Falls, Sophomore, Teegan Coney pointed out her favorite part, "The Maid of the Mist boat ride was awesome. We got soaked." Teegan's trip with fellow Freshman, Amanda York, also included shopping in town and staying in a hotel with Teegan's family. Junior, Lance Campbell, who traversed the Keewadin Peninsula with his family, had a couple of odd encounters with some of the surrounding wildlife. "The bears will walk right into town. In fact, one bear got into a dumpster in the middle of the day to eat lunch."

Another nature bound expedition occurred when juniors, Jessica Albert, Marci Morrison, Danielle Campbell, and Frances Forsyth journeyed a day and a half with their church's youth group all the way out to Wyoming for a stay at the Lone Tree Bible Ranch in Glendo. Here, the group enjoyed horseback riding, camp fires, and sleeping under the stars. Sophomore Jason McNeely traversed to England and Scotland over the summer during his tour of Europe.

It's plain to see that no matter where their excursions lead them, P.H. students couldn't help but enjoy the change of scenery or change of faces that comes along with traveling to a new place or an old favorite.

Angela Sedwick went to Florida for summer vacation. Pictured behind her are the beautiful gardens located at Orlando Studios.

Seniors, Nicole Genaw and Autumn Shymer traveled to Colorado together over the summer.

Forsyth(all bottom right)spend the night roughing it in the prairie lands of Wyoming.

Showing their school spirit during Mr. Wentzel's sixth hour civics class, Sophomores Angela Shannon and Bethany Garrett show off their fancy hats for Cowboy Hat Day during Spirit Week.

Participating in the Games Assembly, class of 2001's Paul Shymko proves his strength in the hay toss, a new game specifically designed for the barn theme. Paul Shymko, participating for the first time in a games assembly, was one of the Varsity football players.

In an attempt to win a pie eating contest at the Games Assembly, Gregory Dazer shows his dedication to the Class of '01 by gobbling up a pie not worrying about the mess he's making.

Randi Morrison(01) and Ryan Mills (01) wheel barrow during the relay race at the games assembly.

Spring

Mr. Moo to the Rescue

Spectacular

Milk maids, meat packers, and beef cutters lend me your steers. It was Spring Spectacular again and Student Council chose Mr. Moo and his Rodeo Crew for their humorous theme. Many of the traditional events were held, but the presentations were anything but typical.

There have always been five theme days during Spirit Week. Sticking to the theme were Cowboy Hat Day and Overall Day. The other days were left to be original with, Crazy Hair Day, and Pajama Day. Continued with the traditional Red & White Day on Friday. Rachelle Zuniga commented, "My favorite day of Spirit Week was Pajama Day because you were able to be comfortable."

During the week there was different lunch time entertainment. One event was the Chicken Dance sung by Danielle Richard. There was also a pig call, lasso competition, and square dancing in which all the nominees for Mr. Moo competed. History of Rock & Roll was put on by the students in drama class. Finally, at the end of the week the jazz band played.

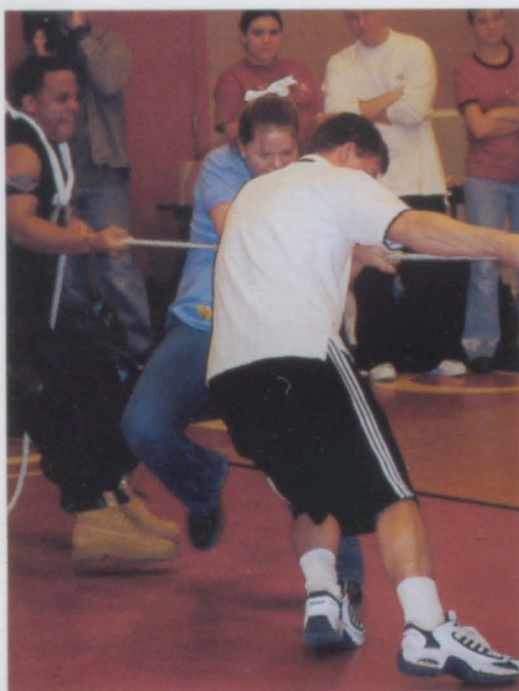

At the end of the week there was the Games Assembly. The Tug-of-War let the games begin with the biggest challenge between the classes. Some of the other games played were the Relay Race, Bobbing for Apples, Milk the Cow, Potato Pass, Egg Crack, and the Hay Throw.

Spring Spectacular ended with a dance known as the Barnyard Ball. Nine guys were chosen as nominees for Mr. Moo and in the end Ryan Sharrow was crowned.

The class of 2000 ended with the Pep Jug by winning the games. With the help of Spring Spectacular, they also were first place overall. Not too far behind was the class of 2001, following them was the class of 2003. Last but not least was the class of 2002.

For Crazy Hair Day, David Whitt (03) bands it up with a variety of colors.

Participating in Tug-of-War Shawn Anderson and Misty Marsh put their strength to work.

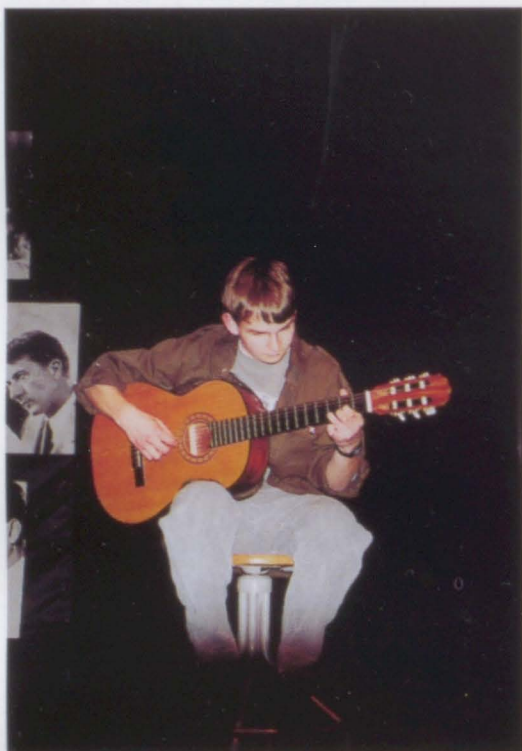

Competing for the right to be crowned Mr. Moo, Nicholas Alexander, William Williams, and Lance

Campbell along with the other nominees square dance for the school during all three lunches.

Following the evening event, all performers of the 2000 Port Huron High School Talent Show, at SC4 auditorium, gather on stage for a standing ovation from the audience. Also being recognized was Mrs. Foxlee and the technical booth and backstage managers.

Poland's foreign exchange student Konrad Hoscilowitz plays a guitar solo to "Stairway to Heaven". Konrad was third in the performance schedule. "Being able to perform in this talent show was a great experience that I will always remember. I'm glad that I was picked from all the other auditions," remarked Konrad.

Doing a Saturday Night Live Skit, Kelli Patterson and Jeremy Marshall performed immediately following intermission and received a ranking of second place.

Senior, Cassie Livingston performs to a solo song called "Sometimes I Wonder Why."

Talent Show

acting it out

Once a year, Port Huron High School students dazzle us with a talent show sponsored by the Drama Club. The "Millennium Talent Show" took place on April 4, 2000. Drama advisor Mrs. Foxlee helped to organize and put everything together to make the event possible.

During the competition the audience could witness dance routines, duet songs, guitar solos, skits, and solo songs. Eighteen players were lined up in a performance schedule of twelve acts. Technical booth and backstage managers helped perfect the show for a smooth operation of lighting, sound, and spot lights.

To qualify for a position in the show, all performers had to take place in an audition. After making cuts, the performers acted in front of a panel of judges. Taking first place was Sadat Hossain with a guitar act from Incubus. Tying for second place were Adam O'Donnell singing "It's A Wonderful Life", and Jeremy Marshall along with Kelli Patterson acting out a Saturday Night Live skit. Third place was given to Nadine Fiori with "Hero" by Mariah Carey.

This gala event took place at the St. Clair County Community College Fine Arts Theater, with an admission charge of $3.00 per person.

Various dancers, a mixture of taste in music and talent, costumes, and perfection, makes the talent show an extraordinary event. "Anybody can audition; they don't have to be a member of Drama Club. I would love to see more people get involved in this wonderful event," stated Mrs. Foxlee.

"It is a great time, to show what a person can do, without feeling really nervous. The talent is unbelievable," added Cassie Livingston.

Performing to Cher's song "Believe", is Kimberly Bloink with a jazz routine. She was the evenings first performer.

Playing an Incubus song, Sadat Hossain shows his skills and was awarded first place.

Friends, Danyel Kivel and Letica Johnson perform a lyrical routine. They danced to Sarah McLachlin's "I Will Remember You", which was released in 1998.

Presenting their chic style for their first homecoming are Freshmen Katie Dickinson, Tracy Delano, and Josilyne Moore. All three girls are wearing a popular fall color. Also determining their sense of style are the opened toed shoes being worn for the special night.

Happy AND Stylish! Seniors Carie Corturillo and Randi Morrison show off their laid back but classy look. Both girls have on simple plain bright colors, which are very popular. Their clothing is solid colors without any designs on them, making it easier to wear the articles of clothing in many different combinations.

fashion. Many other Port Huron High School students could also be seen wearing that label.

Fads and Fashions

What's Hot!

The new century marks the cutting edge for the fashion industry. With bright colors and animal prints becoming even more popular, second glances are happening all the time!! Looking stylish and fashionable is a daily routine for teens around Port Huron High School.

Once again the mainstream designers have created a line of clothing that is in popular demand. Tommy Hilfiger, Ralph Lauren, Sean Combs, and Abercrombie and Fitch can be seen on the majority of our peers here at PH.

Popular new things from tube tops, snake-skin prints, to metallic sweaters are also on the rise. Such accessories as beaded bracelets, dangling necklaces, and rings are being worn by both genders. Little beaded hand bags for the ladies are a hot new item on the fashion scene.

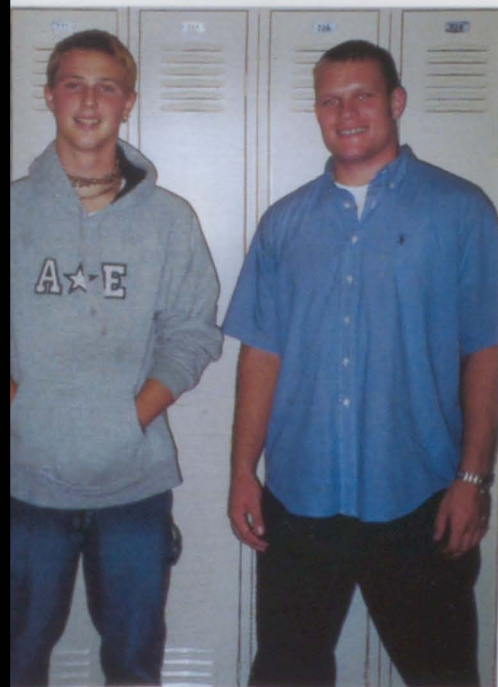

Leather is back in full force from jackets to pants. It is worn for all occasions and gives off a classy appeal. People can be seen wearing long leather jackets for more formal events and a shorter style for day to day wear. Pleather, an imitation of leather that comes in all colors, is seen on models walking the runways in Paris and on the teen population of Port Huron.

"Fashion is a huge part of life, it helps boost confidence levels and just makes students feel good about their appearances. Actually any style is acceptable and you can have fun creating your own," comments Amey Booth.

Other popular brands in fashion include Hurley, Billabong, Rusty, and Roxy Quicksilver. "Fashion is a huge part of what makes us who we are and how we represent ourselves," concludes Stacy Angerbrandt.

Friends, Jason Finger ('03) and Krystal Clor ('02) draw attention to their clothing with flashy colors and designs.

Looking relaxed and comfortable are seniors Tony Fay and Troy Peyrek.

The upperclassmen display a casual appearance. The boys are all wearing blue for a school spirit day, but not just any blue, they've donned a variety of popular shades, styles, and brands.

During Red and White Day, juniors Brandie Warsalla, Michelle Dickinson, Kristie Krug, Scott Young, Courtney Alexander and Connie Evans wear school colors to help support their class.

During History of Rock and Roll Joshua Withenshaw stays in tune while performing his piece during all three lunches.

Helping their class win, one hard pull did it for the seniors. The seniors defeated the juniors and the sophomores to win the Tug-of-War title at the games assembly.

During the games assembly, James Rourke and Gregory Dazer dig in for the race in pie eating.

Spirit Week

Class Competition

As the 2000 Spirit Week started with Monday's event of Class Color Day, students could definitely feel the school spirit. Some of the other events were: Tuesday's Hat and Button Day that the seniors dominated; Wednesday's event, Stuffed Animal Day, in which the sophomores were victorious; Thursday being Pajama Day was a lazy day for Port Huron High School with some interesting choices of pajamas. The winners for that day were the seniors.

The favored day this year was Pajama Day. "I liked Pajama Day the most because I could be lazy and not worry about getting dressed," said senior Bryan Collin. Friday was Red and White Day, but it didn't count for Class of the Year.

Continuing the tradition and pride for the Port Huron High School Spirit Week finale was with Friday's Games Assembly. The famous Games Assembly was held in the auditorium in front of the whole student body. "The Games Assembly always seems to bring out a greater atmosphere," said sophomore Laura Slingerland. "Students really put themselves on the line for their class."

The most favored game by far was the Tug-of-War; this is one game that returns every year. The Games

Assembly brings back memories for senior Jerome Recker. "My class doesn't have the best record at the Games Assembly the last four years, but it is always fun." Agreeing with Jerome, junior Chrishonda Miles says "It's funny to watch students make fools of themselves for their class."

The three elements that counted for Class-of-the-Year were Spirit Week, the Games Assembly, and floats made by the students from each class. After Spirit Week, there was a three way tie.

Wearing a lobster on his head, Jason Lockwood helps score points for his sophomore class.

On Stuffed Animal Day, sophomore Angel Assi and senior Jamie Varty brought their favorite stuffed animals to help their classes get points for that day's event in Spirit Week

Starting their big night with some added elegance, Wyatt Myr, Stephanie Ritchie, Brian Pruccoli, Eric Tallmadge, Charleen Calvert, Douglas Prevo, Beth Prochazka, and Justin Combs dine at The Dorsey House in North Street.

Sisters Shelby and Stacy Bixler hug after the announcing of Homecoming Queen. The crown gets handed down as Mr. Wollen congratulates them.

With their ties off and shirts unbuttoned, William Moser and Ryan Mills along with Jennifer Beach

And the doors open

A long time ago in a land far, far away, the doors of Port Huron High opened and the fancy dress ball began in an enchanted forest that some busy wizards made from the old gym. One by one students glided in looking like potential princesses and princes with gowns of exquisite fabrics and suits of true sophistication. One had to see it with their own eyes to believe it.

1,300 students attended the formal Homecoming dance. The gym was filled with dancing and music from 8:00 pm to 11:00 pm. Some commented that their favorite songs were the fast ones that they could really dance to while others were hoping that there would be just a few more slow songs.

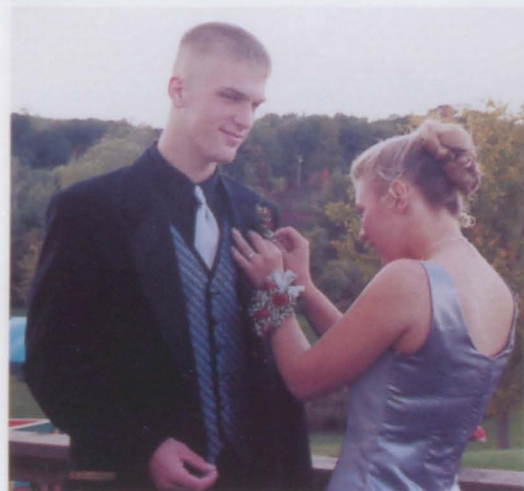

Homecoming Court consisted of King Bradley Barrett, Queen Stacy Bixler, Prince Philip Spencer, Princesses Kalena Armstrong and Desiree Storey, Duke Aaron Trendy, Duchesses Areiky Whitmore and Elizabeth Miles, Lord Ryan Murphy, and Ladies Sasha Field and Mia Sutherland. They truly looked royal. Bradley Barrett reflects on being elected king, "Being elected Homecoming King turned into a goal of mine. I thought it was necessary to break the norm and stereotype towards king. Being king is an honor and privilege but has its downfalls.

Winning isn't everything."

Along with the dance, the students took part in many pre-dance excursions. Dinner beforehand and a party after were the common events that were discussed by many. Junior Angela Choptovy said "I went to the dance because I love to dance and Homecoming has come to mean a lot to me."

Many girls found that they spent as many hours in preparation for the dance as they did at the event. It was an incredibly busy day with an expense budget that topped it all.

Putting the final touches on William Williams tux, Chantel Miller attaches his boutonniere.

Students gather around the refreshment table to rehydrate themselves after dancing the night away.

Elizabeth Miles, Desiree Storey, Kalena Armstrong, Philip Spencer, Emily Gieske, Ryan Murphy, Laura

Smith, Aaron Trendy, Areiky Whitmore, Mia Sutherland, Sasha Field, Stacy Bixler, and Bradley Barrett.

Second place float, Sleeping Beauty's dragon, was created to blow smoke out of his mouth--a clever idea from the juniors. The gigantic beast with the wide spread wings, was the delight of the younger set during the parade for the elementary school students.

Working with plans that focused on the simplicity of early fairy tales, the class of 2003 created their designs. Rapunzel's Tower, which was based on this idea, was this year's first place float. With a large crew of workers, the class finished with time to spare. The facilities at Party Time Ice were convenient and spacious, so the event went smoothly.

Freshmen take a quick break from building their float to show off the signs they made to help encourage their classmates to complete their float in the shape of a bed.

The class of 2001's third place float was put together with detail that included a fan.

Floats

Fairy Tales

Once upon a time there were four competitive classes. They all wanted to go out into the big school and collect their fortune. All they had to do to gain $200 (first place) was devote two weeks of their time to making the best float in the land. There was to be designing, flowering, hammering, stapling, and wiring. Plenty for everyone to do!

Because of their top seniority, seniors got first choice within the fairy tale category for their float idea. The class of 2001 chose to build a Gingerbread House from Hansel and Gretel. Second in command, the juniors decided to create a dragon from Sleeping Beauty. While the sophomores constructed Rapunzel in her castle, the youngins of '04 designed the Big Bad Wolf and Little Red Riding Hood.

All this beauty and craftsmanship was a tribute to all of the workers throughout the Big Red land, but none of it could have happened without the help of the jolly 'ole advisors. Thanks to the lovely Miss McComb and Mrs. Telegadas, the sophomore class was awarded their fortune-- first place prize money.

With great determination, the junior class was able to claim second place under the support of Mr. Haas and Mr. Storey. Encouraging the class of '01 were Mrs.

Hesterberg and Mr. Allen; they were awarded $100 for third place. Still in the running for the money were the freshmen. Although they had one of the fairest floats, they didn't quite make the top three. Mrs. Hinkley and Mrs. Mills did an excellent job of helping their class win $50.

The controversy has ended for another year. Although you can rest assured the need to be the best will resurface next year. Until then, all is well in Big Red Country and everyone lived happily ever after.

The sophomores are working hard to finish the cover for the tower since each class was only given two weeks to get the job done.

In 4th place was Little Red Riding Hood, who was sitting next to the Wolf.

Float building seems to be a really dirty job; senior Marissa Nill shows off her blackened hands from flowering the Gingerbread House from Hansel and Gretel, while Jennifer LaTurno keeps flowering.

Trying to stop traffic Mr. Verran, Mr. Griffith, Jeffrey Fogal, James Miller, and Zachary Meyer show a little leg to get a ride for the band, after the Thunderbirds morning competition was done.

In the exotic bathroom in the Rainforest Cafe, Amanda Bloom, Brooke Schnur, Kristin Banker, Andrea Zauner, and Friederike Boll stop to get in a traditional picture.

The Big Red Marching Machine and chaperones get a group photo taken in front of the two level carrousel in the background, after a long day at Six Flags.

Proudly displaying his favorite purchase Mr. Griffith and his chicken friend enjoy Six Flags.

Band Trip

Colorful Trip: Forever Plaid

Chicago-- the windy city. For three days the Big Red Marching Machine visited this city seeing new sites and having fun in the process.

Band members and color guards spent their May 28th school day on a six hour long bus ride. The first stop was the Chicago Art Institution where students and chaperones roamed around the galleries for about an hour. Later that night they stopped at the exotic Rainforest Cafe with it's colorful decorations and loads of food and fun. With gorillas beating their chests and waterfalls splashing in the background, the scenery captured tourists' imaginations. Students enjoyed shopping in the gift shop where they could buy stuffed animals, t-shirts or one of many other novelties.

One of the favorite events fell upon Saturday night. An entertaining evening was planned as the group first stopped at the Mancello's and ate all the Italian food and pizza their stomachs could hold. They then walked to the musical Forever Plaid which was performed to the delight of all. The play was labeled one of the most entertaining events of the weekend. Two of the actors seeking fresh air found themselves mobbed by the Big Red Marching Machine members, who wanted their autographs, pictures, and a chance to meet them.

Students spent all day Sunday at Six Flags theme park, riding everything from the two level Merry-Go-Round to the many roller coasters. Some brave souls even dared to try the bungy drop which they had to make reservations for. Those who weren't up to the rides spent their time shopping in one of the many different stores throughout the entire park. But according to Marissa Nill her favorite part of the trip was "Seeing Mr. Griffith at Six Flags with a bright red sun burned face and a chicken hat."

The Thunderbirds perform their pom routine in a private school in Chicago. They took two second place ratings overall for their two routines.

Waiting to go to the all day competition Adam O'Donnell prepares to board the bus.

Waiting for their never ending meal Tammy Howe, Heather Howe, Nicole Bergman, Courtney

Alexander, and Connie Evans eat at the Rainforest Cafe.

Bryan Collins, Anthony Devereaux, Kristofer Beem, Erik O'Donnell, James Rourk, Chase Lepia, Kelli Patterson, Tara Smith, Cheryl Simmonds, Kathryn Simmonds, Veronica Mueller, and Autumn Shimer made up the cast of the Moon Over Buffalo play.

Charlotte Hay (Kelli Patterson) takes her aggression out on George Hay (Erik O'Donnell) complaining about how she lost her chance at being a star. She doesn't even realize that she is actually hurting George instead of helping him.

Ethel, played by Tara Smith, attempts to fix George's pants that she had just sewn five minutes earlier after being ripped in half by George and herself during an argument.

Fearfully peeking in the door, Kristofer Beem, playing Howard, attempts to introduce himself.

Moon Over

And the lights go out

Buffalo

Critics say that Moon Over Buffalo was the funniest play at Port Huron High School. They couldn't stop laughing, and wasn't that the truth. Sarajane Eppley commented, "I thought Moon Over Buffalo was very amusing because there were many one-liners that had me rolling on the ground. I thought the acting was pretty stellar too!"

A Broadway comedy, Moon Over Buffalo has the action centered on George and Charlotte Hay, played by Erik O'Donnell and Kelli Patterson, who are the fading stars of a repertory theatre circuit. The couple has lost their last chance at stardom, and to make matters worse, Charlotte has just found out that George has had an affair with the company ingenue Eileen, played by Kathryn Simmonds, who turns out to be carrying his child. When George's agent calls and says that the big man Frank Capra is on a plane to attend the matinee, chaos breaks loose. George turns up missing and the company doesn't know if they are performing Private Lives or Cyrano de Bergerac. The plot is full of mistaken identities, misunderstandings, misplaced affections, and missing persons.

The hard work of the cast members paid off with sold out performances and standing ovations. Junior Tara Smith commented, "The craziest thing that happened was during one show when I accidentally hit Kristofer Beem in the face with a ceramic coffee mug and he had to finish his scene with blood running down the bridge of his nose. I still feel guilty about it". The majority of all who went to see the play left with either smiles on their faces, talking about how great the play was, or left still laughing. The eight member cast, along with the technical crew and the producer Mrs. Foxlee, helped produce this hilarious comedy.

Struggling to keep a hold on all the cast's props, James Rourke helped to make Moon Over Buffalo a complete success.

Trying to keep their relationship from falling apart, Charlotte and George lock lips.

Paul Singer (Bryan Collins) and Rosalind Hay (Cheryl Simmonds) get back together once again.

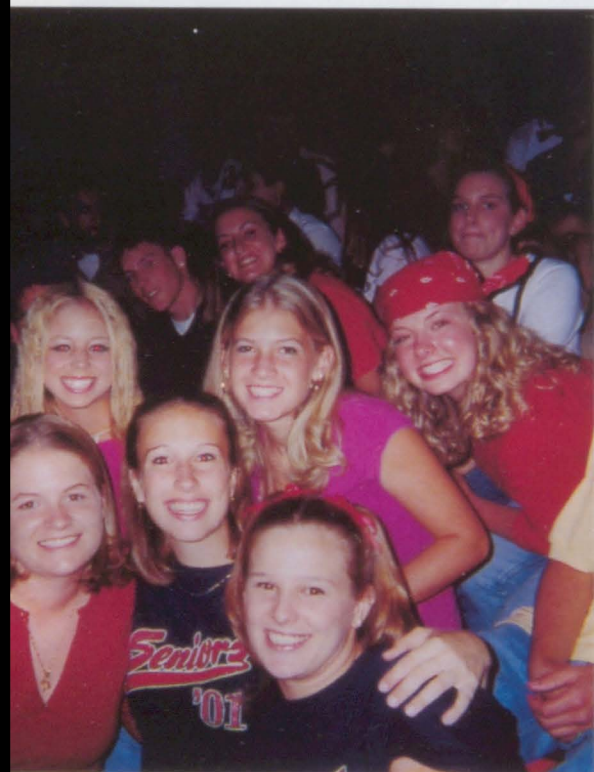

Sisters Cheryl Simmonds and Kathryn Simmonds get the opportunity to work together on the set.

Chapter 2

No story is worth reading without characters interacting. So, we want to introduce you to 1700 student characters and 100 staff characters. To introduce our character lists, we examine what they look like and what their names are. For the Senior characters we round out the development by including high school activities and a view of their early life through their baby pictures. Some of these students stand out as class leaders; others are recognizable by all of the work they do for their class or group. Some shine with their academic skills, while others stand out with their outrageous style. A few are special for their quiet, thoughtful ways. Some of these characters are static and never seem to change. Others are dynamic and we hardly recognize in their behaviors the same people we knew when they were young. Some are new friends and come from far off, from places such as Germany, Japan, and Switzerland. Foreign exchange students bring with them culture and diversity to share with the student body. So as you can see, without students and staff as characters this story would not exist.

Getting into the spirit Stacy Bixler and Shay Christy smile in their cowprint cowboy hats while participating in hat day. Stickers are sold for hat day to benefit organizations.

The Lost One

George Guy Geer II

"I got your back," a line George Geer often used with his friends, was a line that helped sum up his attitude. He thought so much of his friends, who now have plenty of anecdotes about the time spent with George before his early death on July 4, 2000.

When he was only a 15 year old sophomore, he lost a cruel battle with nature. On a carefree summer day George went for a swim at Fortieth Street Pond to cool off. He never returned to shore. Friends and family left behind miss him, and hang onto the memories. In fall McCallum Orchard hosts an apple festival when the crops ready. George enjoyed the fresh fruit when he and his family visited in October.

Friends shared some of their heartwarming memories. "I remember when George and I were in little first grade. We used to fight over our toys, mainly Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle figures. He had more than me and I always got mad at him but I never won." Dominic Costa said.

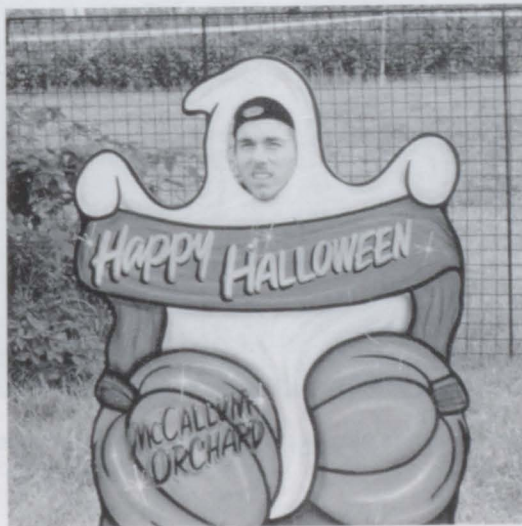

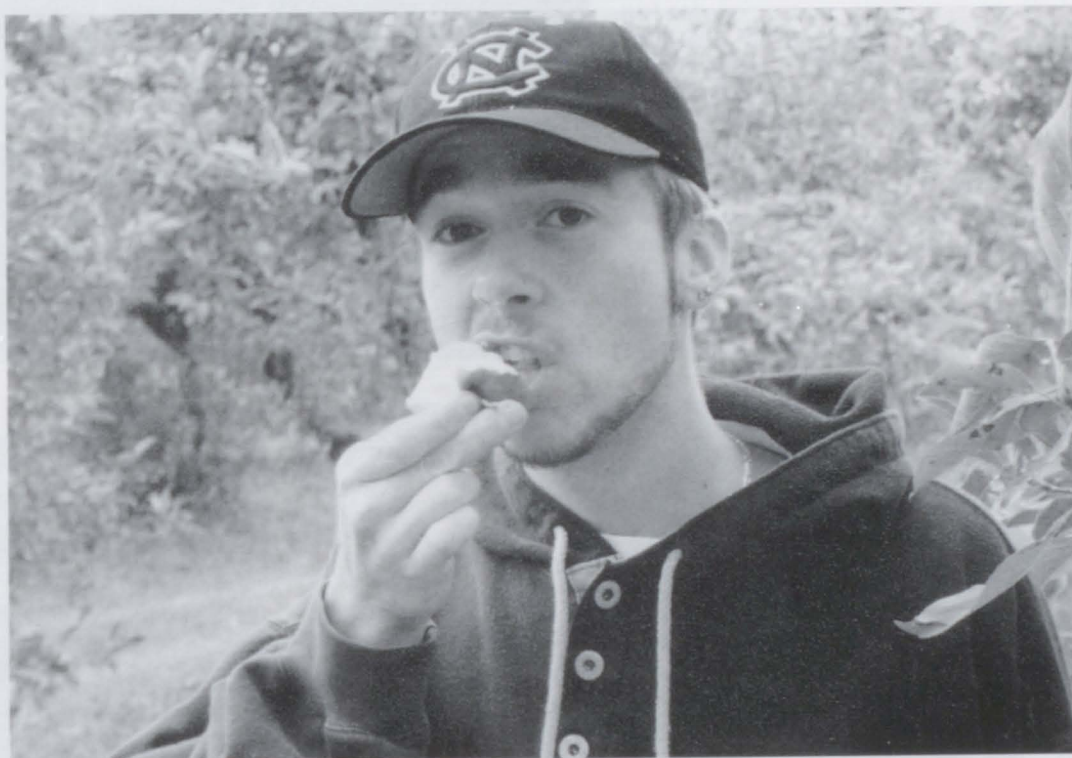

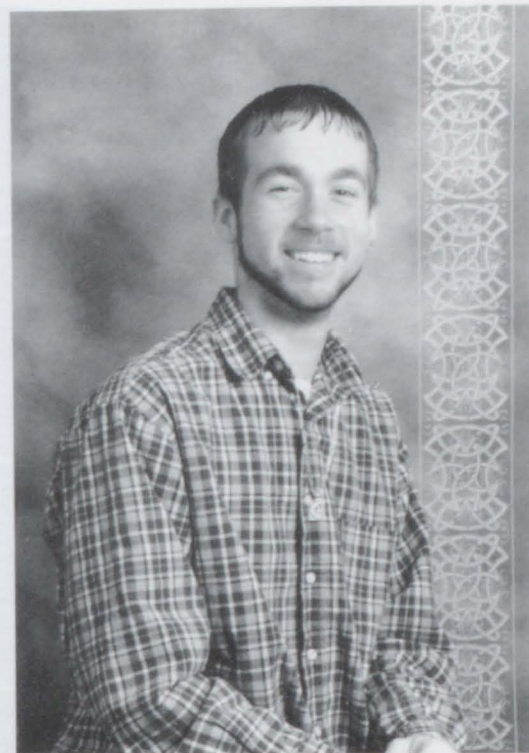

In Drama class George parodies a Northern Cheerleader.

"He was such a good guy" Lynsey Yelenich said.

"I remember when he dressed up in an old Northern cheerleading uniform and put on makeup, a blonde wig, and acted just like he thought they acted like." It was so funny. George's personality was one of the best," Ross said. "He was always after girls and reaching for his goals."

Randy Williams and Tara Plant both said that he was funny, talkative, and outgoing. "He never cared what people thought about him as long as he was pleased with himself", another friend added.

Mark Rowark, George's best friend, said that everything about George sticks out in his mind. "He was awesome."

Staff

Starting the new school year teachers and staff faced a variety of things to do for the upcoming year. Teachers had to come together as more teachers joined the staff. Included in these were Ms. Irish, Mr. Campbell, Ms. Gardner, Mrs. Ridas, Mr. Stayer, Mr. Theut, Mrs. VandeVoorde, and Mr. Wing. These teachers came to perform a variety of itineraries in a wide array of classes. Teachers also had to face the struggle of getting their plans accomplished before the semesters ended. Accomplishing this objectives was no little task due to the snow days that plagued the Port Huron Area School District two weeks before winter vacation. Altogether these changes have worked together to mold the year into what is has become.

Chapter 3

Our story continues with our characters engaged in the complications and rising action of the school year.

These complications included learning new concepts and producing difficult projects. Even the regular class work offered a challenge to be met, but students came through. Big Reds saw the results of TV Production's work every day at the end of third hour on the daily announcement when students broadcasted the news from the Media Center stage. Also in the Media Center, classes visited for research and while individuals looked for good books and still others spent time on the omputers. In an effort to bring the textbooks to life, teachers added experiments and guest speakers to everyday class work. Students creatively produced projects and presentations to be shared with peers. Although many of the assignments had to be supported through homework, students found ways to complete the work. To get some excercise as well as the required credit, students chose physical education and picked up good habits in their health classes. A.P. classes and foreign languages gave students some mental exercise and added difficulty to their schedules.

Homework

Just Do It

Academics

More homework?! These are the infamous words that often come from the mouths of students when it's time to crack open the textbooks after school hours.

However, much to the dismay of many students', homework will benefit them whether they realize it or not. Homework often teaches self-discipline and prepares one for higher education. Homework helps with recall of the subject that was learned earlier in the day and helps formulate better study habits.

"I don't get to hang out with my friends as much," junior Krystal Marusa said, referring to too much homework. This is often true because many high schoolers must balance their daily schedule with family, friends, part-time jobs, and the much needed sleep.

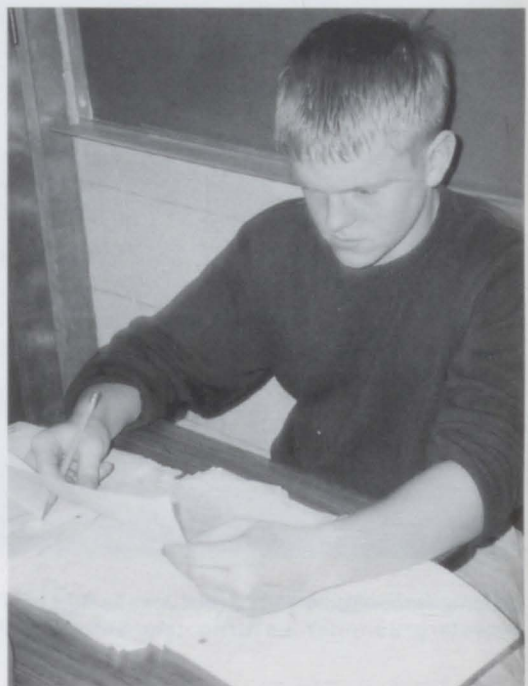

Yet there are some who think doing homework is to their advantage. "On about an average, I usually get two hours of homework a night. As much as I complain, I know in the long run it will pay off," Scott Dwyer said, whose schedule consists of college preparatory and advanced placement courses. Even though taking more advanced classes, means more homework, students are willing to accept the homework load. Teachers sometimes are willing to extend due dates for students because they know that the students often have a heavy load of classes and the much dreaded thing of homework.

"When you have better things to do, such as going out with friends, going to see a movie, or something fun and you also realize that you have homework due the next day, you must make the right decision on what you should do," said Jeffrey Fogal, who had to make this decision more than one time.

Many people have made this decision and they don't regret it because they know they have made the right choice.

Homework is often looked at in a very negative way, but many students know that it is essential to their learning experience. It is bound to help them throughout their college careers and with self-discipline throughout their lives.

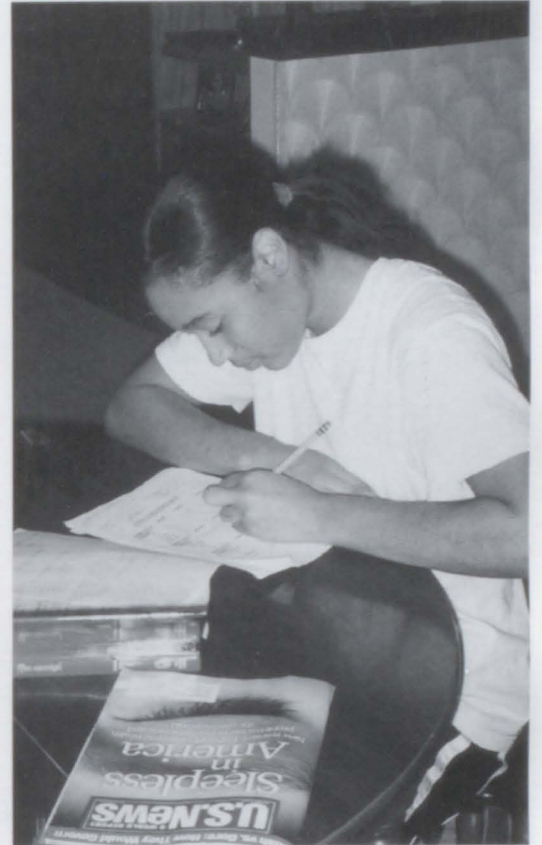

Using some of his available class time, Shawn Stevens works on his CP Chemistry homework.

Academics

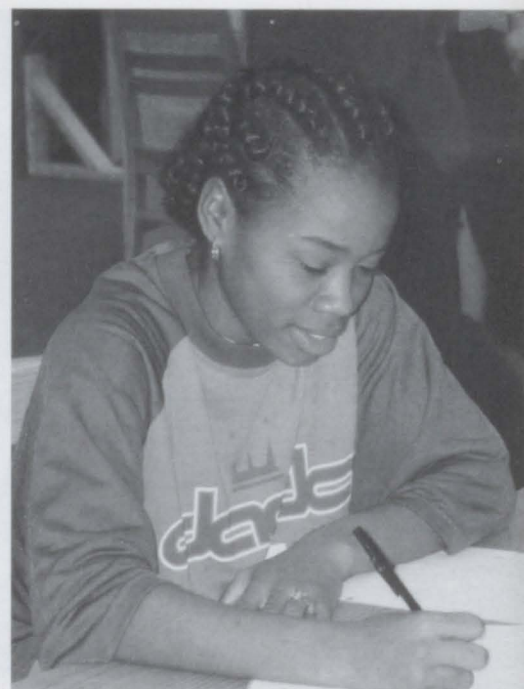

Some students do not know how far the PHHS Media Center has come in recent years, as far as technology and organization are concerned. Under the leadership of Mr. McCabe and Mr. Wing, PHHS's library has been transformed into the resource rich educational facility it is today. The new technology has emerged as the old card catalog was exchanged for the new easy-to-use computer program. Instead of researching from encyclopedic books, students type in the subject they want information on and print out more current news. Also the library has added Internet accessible computers, which are also CD-Rom accessible. Mr. Wing comments "It seems that more and more items are becoming computerized so students need to get comfortable with this or they will be lost very soon."

The Media Center has also helped students by offering the opportunity to learn something new. Students learn the responsibilities of the job. Many of these students became aides to learn more about the different types of technology or to be able to work with other students. Others thought it would be a hands-on substitute for class. Sophomore Claudette Fuchs says "I thought that it looked like it could be fun so I tried it out and I love it!"

Working as an aide in the Media Center gives students a better perspective about the job. They have learned what it is like to deal with helping students and teachers, checking in and out library books and putting them away, dealing with fines, and running errands. "Student aides are essential to the work of the Media Center. Without their help, we will not be able to run the Media Center program and serve our student population" remarks Mr. McCabe.

Teachers use the Media Center all the time. English teacher Ms. Foster uses it to give students an opportunity to look for books to read throughout the marking period. Teachers also use the Media Center to bring in guest speakers for further explanation on certain topics.

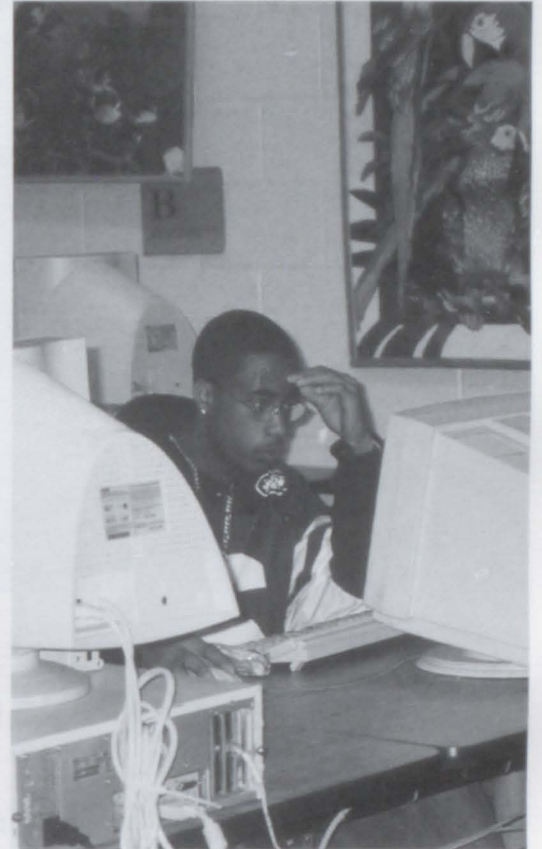

Using the quietness of the Media Center, Senior Raekheal Alexander finishes up some homework.

Academics

Projects

Presentations

Academics

Tired of the same dried up textbooks, excitement starved lectures, and boring homework assignments? As much as students have come to know and love these time-tested methods of teaching, a little variety once in a while never hurt anyone. So, in an attempt to liven things up a bit, many teachers assign their classes projects. Not only does this make the lesson plan somewhat more appealing, some students find it easier to learn this way.

Often times, projects go hand in hand with group work (i.e. cooperative learning) and presentations. Presentations serve as a means for students to share what they have learned in the course of their research with the entire class. Depending on how good their public speaking abilities are, standing up in front of their peers can be a nerve racking experience. However, working with other people to get their ideas across aids in the process.

Variety and extent of the project is limited only by the teacher or student's imagination. One example of resourceful teaching is the activity done by Mr. Morhovich's geometry classes. In this activity, students put their knowledge of geometry to use as they build large size triangles, rectangles, and rhombuses by pounding stakes into the ground for points of reference. Another creative assignment is one given to Mrs. Foxlee's literature classes. During the project, students are divided into groups and must present one Shakespearean play to the class by making a video or acting it out in front of the class. The result was a surprising enthusiasm from students. Junior, Bradley Foltz reflects on past projects, "In ninth grade, we made Romeo and Juliet. I was Juliet. It was sweet."

Projects can easily turn even the most dull subject matter into an opportunity for students to use their imagination. Some presentations provide more of a grounds for creativity than others. However, whatever the means of getting the point across, learning is the main objective in any presentation.

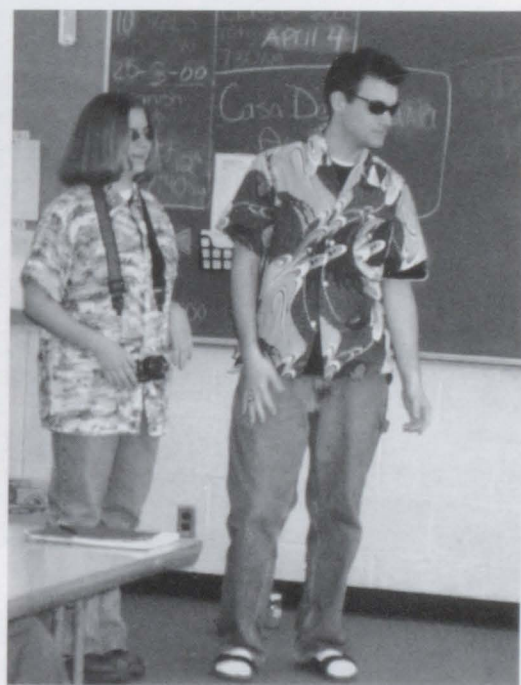

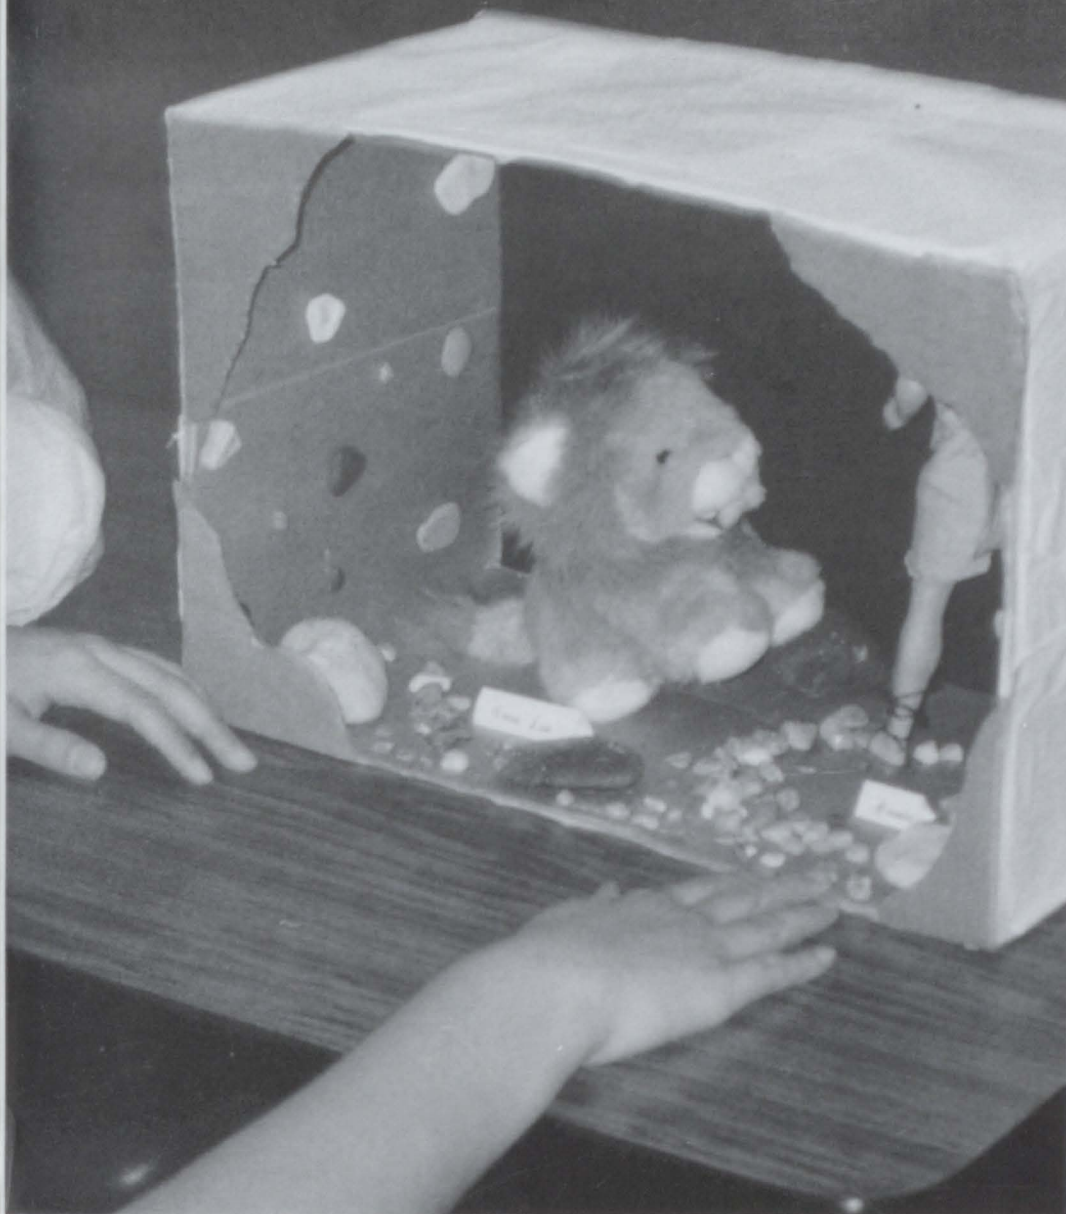

Juniors, Michael Helmreich and Krystal Brown work on perfecting an angle for a geometry project.

Academics

Experiments All Around Us

Academics

How do we solve some of life's problems and/or biggest questions? Experiments! No matter where one looks some kind of experiment will be going on.

In PHHS, students mostly performed experiments in their math and science classes. The experiments went from simple to complex, ranging from ecology jars to fireworks. There were many different types of experiments involving chemicals, measurements, mosses, animals, and ecosystems. One thing all school experiments involved students!

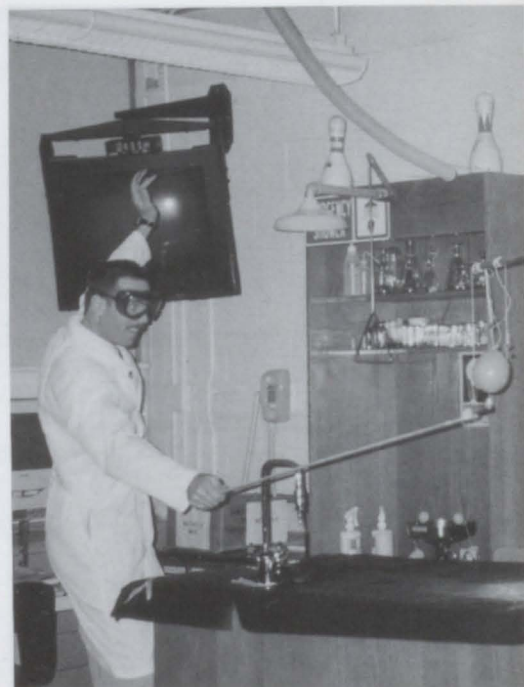

Many will remember these experiences. Junior Ashley May said "My favorite experiment was when we lit flames with certain salts, and it turned the flame a different color for each salt. We did this in CP Chemistry."

Jonathan Beem, a junior, said that his favorite experiment was "When the plastics guy came into chemistry and we got to do some hands on projects where we made some materials by mixing stuff."

Stephen Hohmann said that one experiment he thought was fun was "Flaming Gas Bubbles. It was just cool." Freshman David Phu felt experiments were educational.

In all experiments and labs, students had to follow the safety rules and be very careful around chemicals. Most experiments are safe, but some could go awry if calculations were off or another problem occurred. Biology teacher Mr. Christick said he had an experiment go wrong in his class: "I had an advanced student start a bulletin board on fire with an experiment." That danger was one of the attractions for students, who enjoyed the chance to work with chemicals that they were not able to use at home. Experiments are often fun for students to perform, and can also be very exciting to do.

Some of the neatest experiments occurred in the walls of this school; it is a great school work tradition that needs to continue for years to come.

Announcements

Academics

"It's definitely entertaining and something usually goes wrong, making it very different every day." This is what Senior Paolo Sparacino had to say about the daily announcements. Paolo is one of many of the third hour TV Productions staff who work on the announcements. Though it may seem glamorous, a lot of work goes into the daily process of production. This work is accomplished through the cooperative efforts of both the people seen on screen and those working behind the scenes.

One of the things that distinguishes this year's TV Productions class from past years is the vast increase in technology. This technology has not only altered existing methods, but has brought with it a huge amount of new possibilities. Graphics, camera angles, and countless other aspects of production have been effected by this advancement in computers. One piece of equipment frequently used is the editing machine. Students use this to piece together video clips or cut out unnecessary footage.

Though the third hour crew works solely on the announcements, first year TV Productions students are assigned a variety other projects. These projects allow students to gain some experience in compiling as well as taping documentaries, interviews, and other types of videos. One example of a project would be when students were asked to make a "how to" video. When asked about the sorts of assignments she has worked on, Junior Elizabeth Pelletier responded "Different projects like 'how to get a date' and interviews with the security guard, Charlie".

There is a lot of room for creativity within the projects assigned, and students seem to particularly enjoy this freedom to use their own ideas. "What I like most about this class is how Mr. Stayer gives us independence. I also like how we can explore the TV equipment and use our own imagination," says Senior Raekheal Alexander. Similarly, Brandon Kovatch comments that his favorite part is "Being able to put your own creativity in making movies."

Guest Speakers

Who is it this time?

Academics

Learning, teaching, understanding: these are three crucial elements that involve teacher-student interaction. However, teachers will often have guest speakers come in to give first-hand experience to the students.

Mr. Weymouth, one of the health teachers, often brings in different speakers to talk about sexually transmitted diseases and contraceptives. "When Mrs. Bennett, who talked about contraceptives, came in, she was very informative about how to react in situations concerning sex. I found the facts very helpful for my future reference," Health student Aerial Russell commented.

The March of Dimes' Jail-N-Bail was won by the Class of 2003. They donated enough money to the charity to get an assembly by magician and guest speaker Tommy Nugent, who talked about drugs and making the right decisions. Ann Toto, a student in the Class of 2003, stated, "I really enjoyed the assembly because we won something on our own. It also helped because we got out of class to attend it."

Civics teacher, Mr. Dries, had Sergeant Alexander, from the Army Recruiting Center, talk for the civics classes about the opportunities that the Army offers. "I always have the Army come in to discuss possible careers. The Army offers more money for college and opportunities than the Air Force or Marines, for example."

The whole of Port Huron High School attended an assembly called, "Chances or Choices -- Making Wise Decisions." The assembly was to inform students about making the decision against alcohol, drugs, and other harmful substances. "The assembly was different from the others that came to PHHS because it was more up-to-date than what we learn about in our other classes," said senior Bradley Barrett.

Students enjoy having different approaches to learning in the classroom and teachers asking guest speakers to present their experience is one way to help achieve the learning process.

Foreign Different Cultures Language

Academics

Singing, dancing, and fiestas are just some of the reasons why 307 students are enrolled in a foreign language class this year. Away from all the required classes at Port Huron High School that the students must take, they are also offered French, German, and Spanish classes here, and Japanese and sign language which is available at Port Huron Northern. According to the teachers of these languages, students usually take a foreign language class in the 10th or 11th grade.

The majority of the students in these classes took a foreign language class because most colleges require at least two years of one. However, there are many who will say they just want to learn a new language. Senior LaTrisha Steenburg said "I took German because it's just a fun language." Sophomore Ross Carl explained, "I want to learn German so I can travel there in the future." Senior Donald Thelmas exclaimed "I took French because it's the language of love!" Some favorite words that the students have learned are words such as "Gut" which means

"Good" in German, "Singe" which is "Monkey" in French, and favorites like "Hola" and "Hasta la vista" which means "Hi" and "Be seeing you" in Spanish.

Some students also enjoy taking a foreign language class because of the teachers, such as German teacher Mrs. Hesterberg. "Frau Hesterberg is very energetic, I wouldn't take the class without a good teacher," explained Freshman Christopher Bowsman, and Sophomore, Joseph Hunter said, "The best thing about the class is Frau, she's goofy!"

German teacher Mrs. Hesterberg explained, "I knew I wanted to teach German. My parents both were born in a German speaking family in Russia, and I've always wanted to understand what they were saying and I really like high school." The students in these classes took the class for numerous reasons. No matter what the language taken, the students in these classes will all say, "It is really fun!"

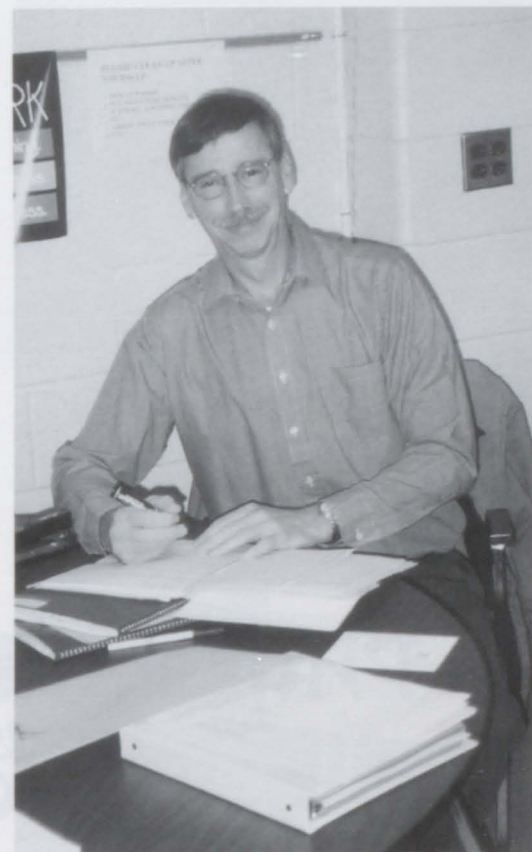

German students learn the song "Head, Shoulders, Knees, and Toes," in German.

Academics

Physical Education Keeping Fit & Health

Academics

Two of the required classes for students in high school are Physical Education and Health. Both of these classes emphasize the well-being of students. Although these classes are mainly made up of freshmen, some upperclassmen also participate.

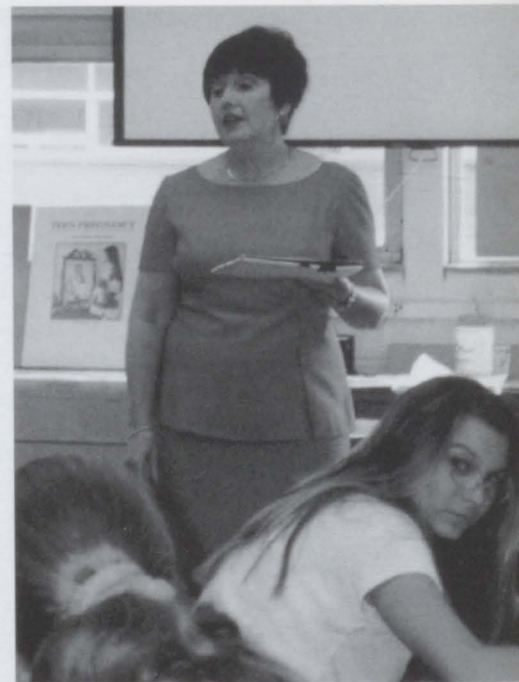

Physical Education's central focus is on staying in shape and the students learn how to play many different sports. Both boys' and girls' gym classes play some of the same sports such as, basketball, track, volleyball, and soccer. Boys General Gym also played flag football, handball, and wrestling. Girls' General Gym added bowling, gymnastics, badminton, and table tennis. Freshman Alicia Warsalla commented, "I enjoy gym class most of the time because it can be fun plus everyone can use the exercise."

On the academic level, Health teachers have taught students about the dangers of drugs, alcohol, tobacco, and cigarettes. Students also learned about sexually transmitted diseases and how to protect themselves. Proper nutrition was another major topic in Health class. The teachers brought in guest speakers to help with these topics.

Two other classes not required but similar to the Health classes are Child Development and Parenthood. One hands-on activity that has left a lasting impression on students was the Empathy Belly. This gave students the feeling of how heavy the baby in the womb is after about nine months of pregnancy. The various stages of growth and development and the correct way to care for children is a very important aspect of the class.

The various gym and health related classes, despite their different ways of teaching have really only one main goal in common for their students-- to teach kids how to remain healthy. Freshman Cara Brandimore commented "Health class taught me a lot of new things, things I may need to know in the future like about GHB, the Date Rape Drug. Every girl should be aware of this because it has become such an important issue."

Mrs. Rutkufske informs her Parenthood students about the responsibilities of raising a child.

Foreign Exchange Greetings From Overseas Students

Academics

Becoming an exchange student isn't the easiest thing to do -- leaving the family nest, taking a long flight to your new home for the next year, creating a new collection of friends, or even learning a new language. Yet this year at Port Huron High School, five new students joined as seniors to the student body.

Julie Puschmann and Christian Schwickert both from Germany, Lea Widmer from Switzerland, Silvio Sidrim from Brazil, and Kumiko Sasada from Japan enrolled at Port Huron High School during the fall to experience the American culture.

There is often a culture barrier when the exchange students arrive at their destination, and most aren't used to leaving their country's public transportation system to a place where the citizens of the US rely on cars to get to the place of arrival. One of the easier things to get used to is the fast food style available to them.

"I really like tacos and nachos. We can't get them in Germany," Julie Puschmann commented about the food difference.

"We eat more healthy food and I think we have more fresh food, like bread and bakery things. Swiss chocolate is the best!" added Switzerland's Lea Widmer. Food is one of the top differences that the students find.

"The people here are friendly and more talkative. Teachers at PHHS make classes interesting and nobody sleeps in class," Kumiko Sasada observed, comparing Japan's classes with America's.

"I can't find any similarities between Germany and American schools. Here in America, the school is much larger and the number of subjects available are greater," said German Christian Schwickert.

Senior Sarajane Eppley spent five months in Nailsea, England as an exchange student in the Nailsea School Sixth Form. She was able to visit Paris, France with the school for a small vacation. Reflecting on her opportunity, "I had the time of my life! My whole experience was stellar! I met some really cool people over there and I totally recommend it if you can get a chance!"

Careful not to look at the keyboard, Kumiko Sasada types the required daily work.

first time in the fall. Both girls share the classes of newspaper and physics together.

Fine Arts Festival

Looking In

A gallery-style showing made the May 19, 2000 Fine Arts Festival a gala event. Samantha Dodge had created the logo for it. Ms. Barrett, with help from Mr. Magnuson, set up the show. Students as well as parents and teachers were all invited to view the work from creative students.

Students could enter artwork in forms of vocal, written, photos, drawings and more. People entered their art to showcase their abilities and to try to win the award money. Fifty dollars was given to the first place winners in every category. Many of these students plan to continue in the career of art.

At the Fine Arts Festival there were refreshments and a band to entertain everyone who was present.

Academics

Have you ever wondered about the melodious sound in the northwest corner of the school? That's the combined choirs of Port Huron High School and Port Huron Northern. It is a program that is slowly gaining recognition. With choir members working as a team, awards are being won and a new respect is being built. Sophomore Cheryl Simmonds commented, "I think it is a wonderful program. It's awesome to be able to watch yourself and friends improve." Mrs. Manuilow states, "I enjoy teaching individual work as much as I can."

The choir program currently consists of three different choral programs. Students start by joining vocal theory, where they learn the basic techniques of using their voices in the correct way. From here, students then audition with choir teacher Mrs. Manuilow to see if they are capable voice-wise to advance into Women's Ensemble. Mrs. Manuilow later decides who has earned the right to be in Concert Choir.

A fourth program- Men's Ensemble-may soon be on the way. This program will give men an opportunity to voice their singing talent. Mrs. Manuilow commented "I would like to see a Men's Ensemble develop and flourish. I see glee clubs from West Point, the Air Force Academy, MSU and U of M, and I know we can do this as well."

Everyday, in the first ten to fifteen minutes of class, warm ups are practiced to prepare the vocal chords of the students. The "do-re-mi" scale is a common way of warming up. After these preparations, songs are rehearsed over and over so that the memorization process is ensured.

Despite the work of the Choir, most of the members agree on the issue that the program is not getting the attention that they rightfully deserve. Senior Melissa Daley stated "I think we need more recognition for our program. We're really good but no one gets to see that." Until then though, the choir continues to practice and do what they do best and that is to sing.

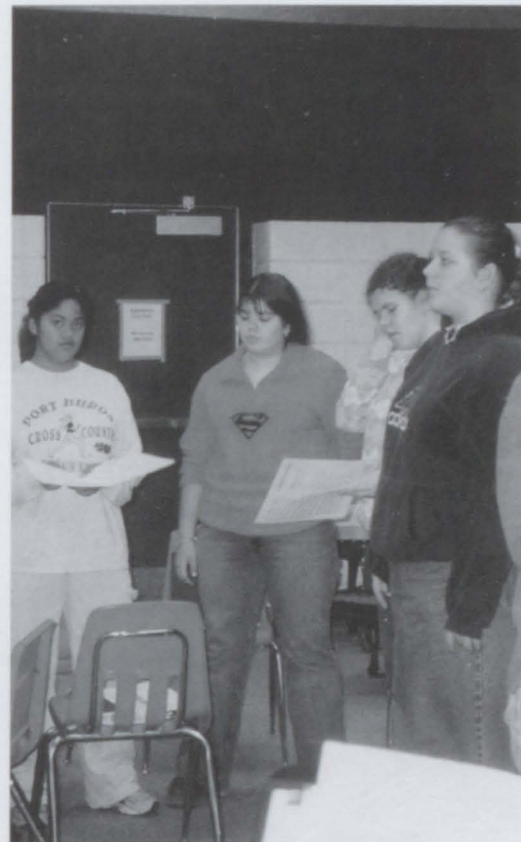

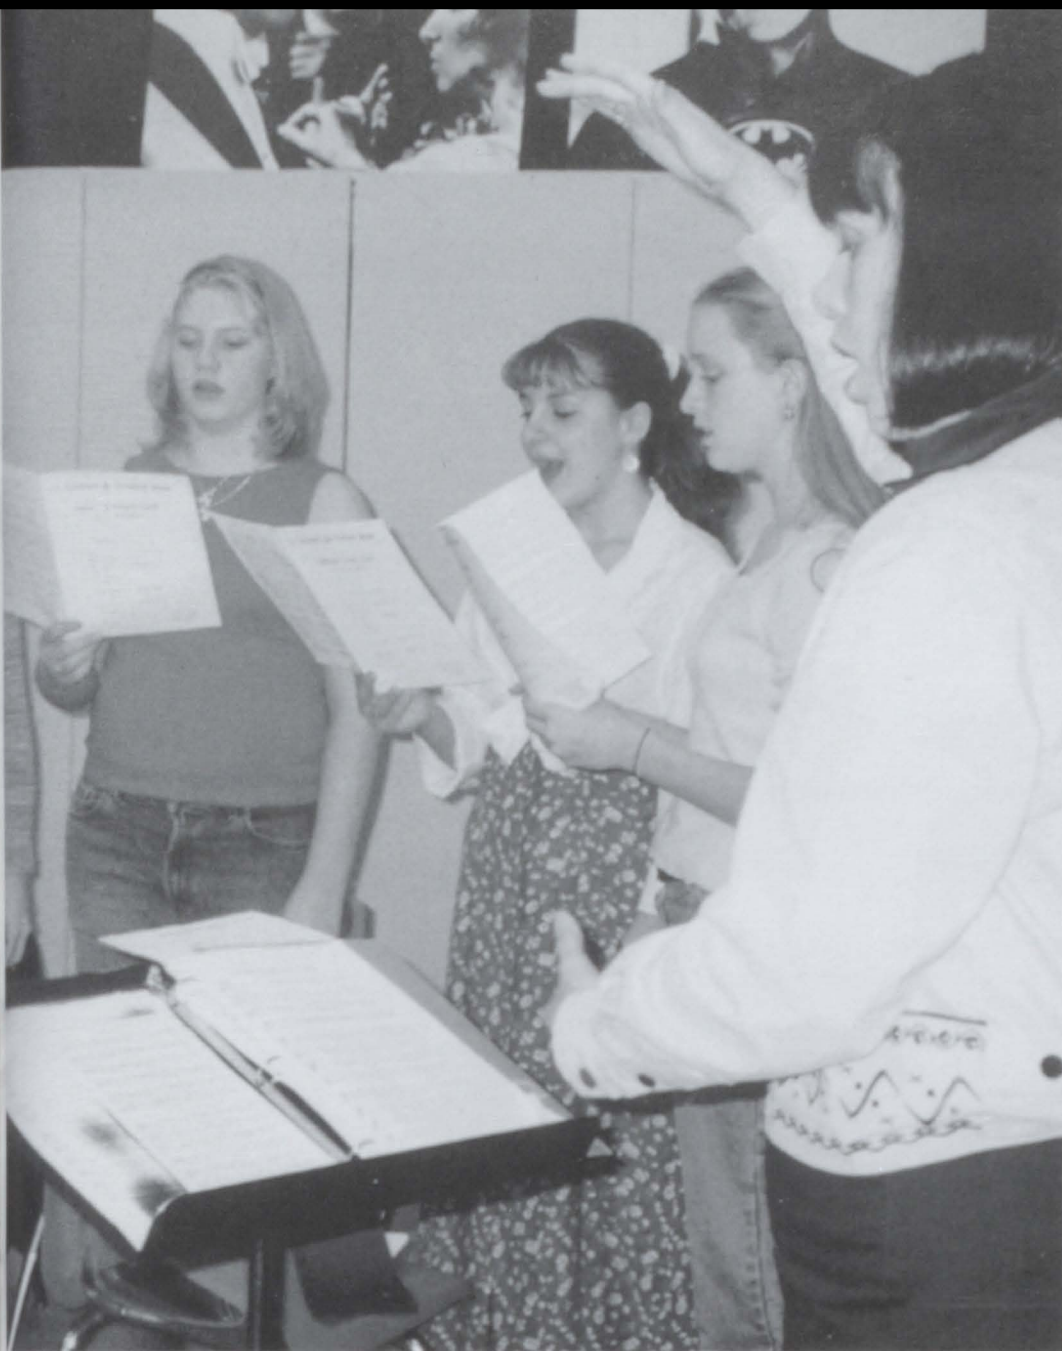

Choir director Mrs. Manuilow warms up the Vocal Theory class by using the "Do, re, mi" scale.

Academic highlights

1. The Choir program came to PHHS in September of 1997.
2. Mrs. Manuilow's goal is to turn the choir program into a sort of family that works toward commitment.

Organizations

Chapter 4

Like the imagery used to provide the fabric of a story with color, organizations provide situation with a means of expressing themselves through the activities they enjoy doing. Students interested in literature and the arts may find themselves at home in The Drama Club, The Lighthouse, the Big Red Marching Machine, or the Yearbook. Others inclined towards helping their community can appreciate organizations such as PAC, SADD or NHS. Academic clubs include Quiz Bowl, DECA, and BPOA. With a variety to choose from, there is a little something appealing to all the senses. Most students find some endeavor that suits their interests, while others stretch to involve themselves in everything. A feature of belonging to an organization is that it allows the student exposed to new things and different people. However, if the same interest continues year after year, it may foreshadow what will be pursued in college or in a career. Other times, current involvement in an activity may cause a flashback to a middle school when the same activity was preferred.

dedication and commitment

From open to close the yearbook is a diary of the year's attitudes, a history of the year's accomplishments, and a scrapbook of favorite photos. It's used to record students enrolled in the school and to list activities available to those who wish to join.

With so many requirements for completing a book, a variety of skills were needed. Students selected their area of preference and began the job of putting together the elements for a page or section of the annual.

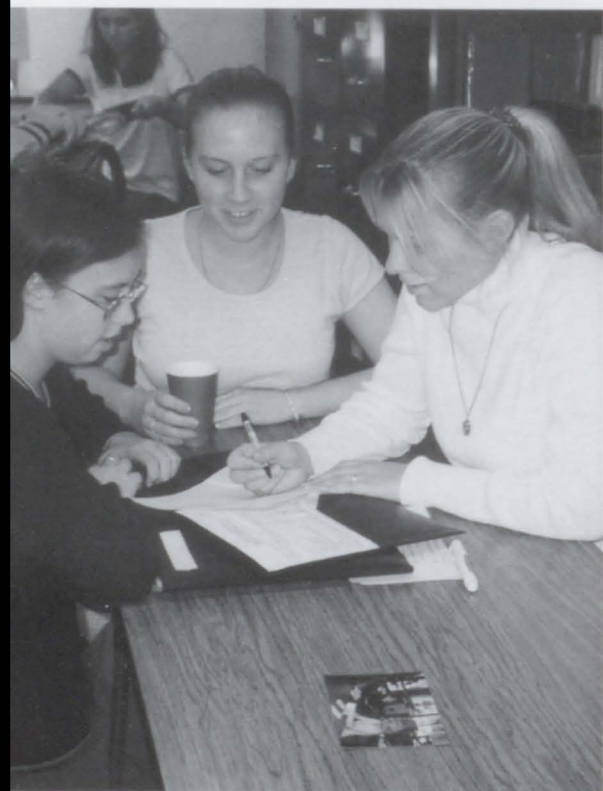

The year's staff, comprised of 27 members, worked together to compose this annual. The editors, advertisement and business staff, and the general staff each played a vital role in producing the ultimate goal-- "A well thought through book with great quality," said Dawn Marrocco.

Meeting every deadline seemed like a tighter squeeze this year. With the new photography company sending a new size of senior mugs the day before the first deadline, the staff started off the year in a panic. Andrea Zauner commented, "I never thought it could be done but we did it. We came, we worked, and we celebrated when we were finished." After that, clubs like Bowling Club revived themselves after the September deadlines were set, only adding to the complication of matters. Page numbers were switched to help everything along, adding new and taking away the old.

The dedication behind the book was in full force. The work for the most part was not difficult, but the time commitment was great. "The number of computers in the room were inadequate, so we had to stay after school frequently to get enough time to use them. The hours racked right up. Sometimes we stay until 10:30 at night to reach our deadline," said Stacy Thayer. People in the class and the after school staff could earn Varsity Letters if they put in extra hours of their free time after school working on the book.

"The hardwork, dedication, and commitment it takes to produce the yearbook is all worth it at the end of the year. We get the yearbook back and it's wonderful," remarked Nicole Steward.

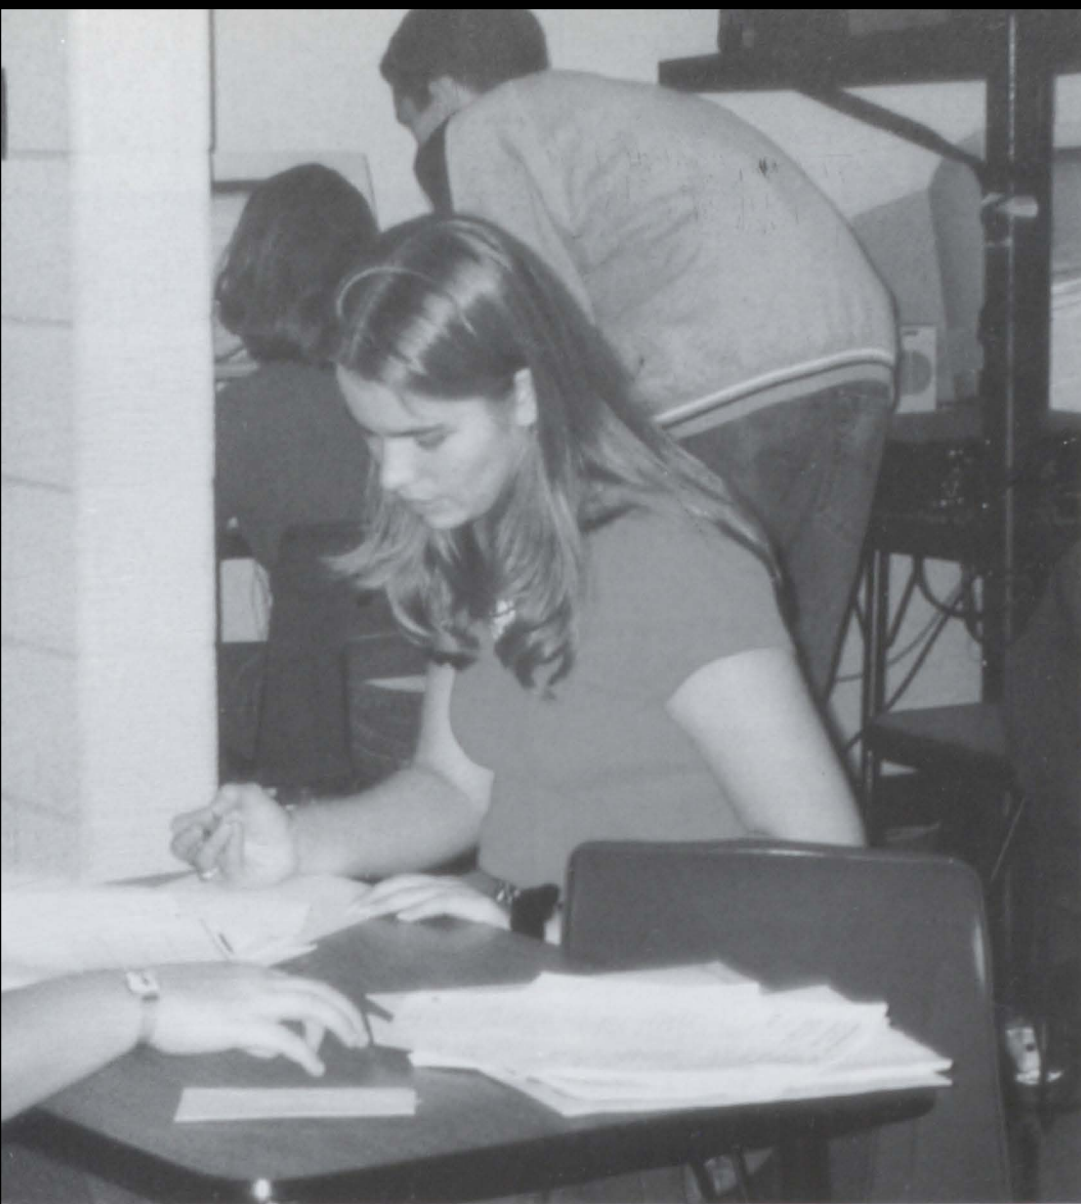

Working together on advertisements work and business, Marci Morrison, Melissa Berish and Chantel Miller record information.

Selecting the pictures and writing copy for the yearbook spread, Junior Jessica Albert and Senior Dawn Marrocco edit the page. Jessica is the backbone of the work done on the computers. Dawn does a little bit of everything to help the staff.

Concentrating on getting the exact fit for some baby pictures and senior mugs, Andrea Zauner and Stacy Thayer meet their deadline. In the background, Scott Dwyer helps Cora Armstrong on the computer.

Student Council

Order in the Meeting

All in favor of starting the Student Council spread? Opposed? Okay, it's a majority vote. Let's begin. President Chantel Miller conducts all meetings in this matter- an item is proposed and the group discusses what they want to do about it, then there is a motion to vote. The members vote and the proposal is either passed or vetoed.

Many school and community related activities are done by the members of Student Council. Two of the most popular events of the school Homecoming and Spring Spectacular are sponsored by the group. Along with that are the multiple charity funds and events like MAC-SAC, Toys for Tots, March of Dimes, the canned food drive, and of course Class of the Year.

Members are elected the previous year by classmates and two are appointed by the advisor. Class officers automatically have a spot on the group if they want and should they refuse, their seat becomes occupied by the person who had the next highest number of votes. Ten people earn the seats from the election along with the four class officers. The newly elected group holds their first meeting with the old groups last one. It helps both sets out because the new members can see how its done and the old members can explain to the new ones how to run things. This is also the time when the awards are given out.

A lot of time and dedication must be put into this organization. Members must support the school and their class and reflect the thoughts of all their schoolmates. They must also listen to complaints from students and parents about what they did not like. This year a meeting was held and parents came to complain to officials about Homecoming. Some representatives went and sat in among the meeting to take notes to correct the problems for the following year. Members must volunteer their time for many activities to keep their participation percentage up. Anyone who falls below a seventy percent is put on probation and can later be kicked off if they do not raise it. "Student Council is an enjoyable organization to join. It helps you learn important skills for the future," commented Junior representative Danielle Campbell.

Working her station at Parent Teacher Conferences, Amanda Jock sits waiting to answer questions and give directions to parents.

Attending an all day MAC-SAC Leadership Conference, Chantel Miller, Laura Smith, and Emily Gieske represent the Big Reds, listen to the speaker and discuss important ideas on leadership and Homecoming with other students from out of area school districts.

BRMM

Benji versus Godzilla

It's... it's...Godzilla! Screams fill the stadium as little red figures run for their lives. Godzilla wreaks havoc and laughs at the poor defenseless crowd. Can no one stop him?

Godzilla! What?! If by now confusion has struck, do not be alarmed-- it's just the BRMM performing their halftime show "Godzilla Eats Las Vegas." At each game the song ended at a different scene leaving a cliffhanger, until the entire show appeared one time only at the PH-PHN game. "I thought the Godzilla show was a lot of fun to perform. It was also a lot of hard work but it was worth it in the end," said James Miller.

The band worked on the show starting with the ever so popular Band Week during the summer. Eight hours were taken out of the day to work on music and routines.

Band members also attended a three hour long workshop by Dr. Tim. The subject- leadership. Students were drilled and prepped through a comical show. First order of business was to sit around people they do not know. Once done, Dr. Tim would ask "Why didn't you introduce yourselves? A leader wouldn't need to be told to do so." The next time seats were changed so were names and what did the speaker say? "What things are they interested in? A leader would find out without being told to do so." This went on for the full three hours. Every time the seats were changed, even more was exchanged among the people and everytime Dr. Tim pointed out something that wasn't done.

But perhaps the best words of advice that Dr. Tim told were what Zachary Meyer remembers best. "Dr. Tim told us that a leader is someone who does the jobs that nobody else wants to do. A leader is the person who flushes the toilet because the person before them didn't."

The night continued until the story of Benji was told. It was a heartwarming tale of a freshman trumpet player in marching band who is a black sheep and feels he's isn't good enough. He continues to feel terrible until the senior drum major befriends him and quickly changes his life forever. It shows how taking five minutes of your time can help change a person's life.

Drummers Nathan Arnold, Jason Summers, and Justin Maes march the halls getting the school pumped up for the PH-PHN football game. The band also played at the pep assembly afterwards.

Band Officers and Drum Majors for the Big Red Marching Machine's 2000-2001 year are Amy May (President), Andrea Zauner (Historian), Jeffrey Fogal (Treasurer), Beth Prochazka (Secretary), Aaron Smith (Junior Drum Major), Stacy Bixler (Senior Drum Major), and Wendy Torello (Vice-President). All officers were elected by the entire band after nominations in the spring.

Flags

A new dedication

It took real dedication for the Flag Team this year. In May of 2000 the flag coach Mrs. Jenny Klebba resigned her position. The flags were on a rocky path for the 2000-2001 school year. Despite not having a coach, practices were held in team members backyards, so the football season performances would look their best. Then a couple of weeks into the new school year Mrs. Susan Gilbert became the coach.

The theme for football performances was 'Godzilla Eats Las Vegas'. It required practice every Monday and Thursday from 2:30 until 4:30 and on Wednesday from 2:30 until 3:30. The Flags along with the Thunderbirds became the Alvi and took the chance to fight Godzilla in the show. After being scattered by the evil menace they achieved a quick and exciting victory, making everything turn out all right in the end.

The move that took everyone the longest to learn and perfect was named Head Choppers. These require one twirler to bend down and another person swings her flag across the head of the person next to her one beat later they switch roles; alternating roles.

Brandy Finch commented "I think head choppers are the most dangerous move we do because someone could hit you in the head HARD!!!!" So this move takes a lot of practice and coordination among team members.

The typical moves that are performed are flutters, back flutters, windmills, push spins, many different variety hits, drop spins, drop spin tosses, extensions, extension tosses, double butterflies. Doing any of these the wrong way will result in a bruise or injuring a team member.

The flag team doesn't just perform in the half time shows for football and basketball games. They also participate in (the Homecoming Parade; the Thanksgiving also known as the Christmas Parade; the St. Patrick's Day Parade, the big Blue Water Parade and this year the Main Street Parade in Walt Disney World). Twirling in parades is very different than performing in halftime shows, sometimes even harder, but "The smiles on the little kids faces who think that you're the best in the whole world even if you make a mistake" make it all worth it says Chrystal Murphy.

Renee Conger and Amy Henderson march down the halls to get classmates to show their school spirit at the PH vs. PHN Varsity football game.

Thunderbirds

Smile! Sparkle! Dance!

The Thunderbirds Dance and Drill Team's season began with a rocky start as the former head coaches Lynne Hearn and Jenny Klebba resigned from their positions leaving the team without coaches for the summer. But Lynne Hearn, the previous coach filled in during that period of time until the position was filled by current coach Kathie Wolfe and assistant coach Jamie Smith.

Another event that hurt the team was when many of the team members quit due to conflict of interest, leaving the team at a depleted number of nine after spring tryouts. This was a change from the seventeen that were on the team during the 1999-2000 season.

As the football season began, so did a "new" team along with foreign exchange student Kumiko Sasada bringing the number up to ten. Kumi said, [The reason I joined the team was because] "I want to [learn] to dance well." The Thunderbirds Dance and Drill Team performed pre-game and half-time shows along with the BRMM during all home football games. This year, the show was titled "Godzilla Eats Las Vegas!"

Two weeks before the end of football season, tryouts were held once again and four new girls were added to the team bringing the number up to fourteen. But having tryouts late into the season set the team back since the "new birds" had to learn the routines during the seven hours of regular practice time.

Throughout competition season four to five competitions were held at different schools, such as Hazel Park High School, Port Huron Northern, and P.H.H.S. This year the Thunderbirds performed three routines; Jazz, Pom, and Lyrical. In each competition routines were rated by judges with a scale depending on the number of points recieved.

The first competition of the year was held in November at Hazel Park High School, where the team did well receiving an "excellent" in both routines. Their next competition was held at Northern in December where the girls in Jazz and recieved a "superior" rating and an "outstanding" in Pom. In February another competition was held here a PHHS, were they recieved an "excellent" in all three routines performed and qualified for States and Nationals. Ashley Reim comments, "Competing is my favorite [because] I love the intensity of the judges watching you."

Drama Team

Forensics

If there is one word that could sum up Drama Team this year, it would be "busy". An abundance of new ideas and influences lead to a tightly packed schedule of different projects. Though fresh-faced plans were the welcomed and dominant feature throughout the year, old customs didn't completely give way to new. This balance between traditions and new concepts enabled Drama Club to grow and expand on what it had already established as a creative precedence.

One thing that remained the same and continued to be a big hit was the History of Rock and Roll. Performances took place during spirit week at all three lunches and included such numbers as "Bye, Bye, Bye", during which, players from the Varsity football team strutted their stuff as members of *N*sync*. Others included Destiny's Child's "Jumpin', Jumpin'", performed by Amie Dickinson, Crystal Snyder, and Danielle Kivel, as well as Michael Browning's crowd pleasing rendition of James Brown's "I Feel Good". One new addition to History of Rock and Roll was the "Salute to Disney". The basis of this was taking various songs from Disney movies and performing them. "Under the Sea" from The Little Mermaid and "I Got No Strings" from Pinnocchio, with Joseph Verbeke posing as Pinnocchio were two of the lipsyncs done.

The talent show was also sponsored by the Drama Team. However, participants were not necessarily members. Performing Abbott and Costello's, "Who's on First?" were Hailey Coulter and Cheryl Simmonds, while juniors, Danielle Richard and Nicole Selby entertained audience members with a tap routine. These were just a few of the eight different acts featured in the talent show.

So, what made this year out of the ordinary? Namely, Drama Club branched out to create a forensics team, which is the competitive aspect of performing. On December 1st and 2nd, the Forensics Team attended the International Thespian Festival. Here, PH received exclusive ratings of "Excellent" and one "Superior" rating went to Adam O'Donnell and James Rourke for their hilarious pantomime entitled, "T-Rex Olympics". Other participants included Veronica Mueller and Aaron Smith with a duet from the musical, "A Chorus Line".

Adam O'Donnell impersonates Louis Armstrong while singing "What a Wonderful World" at the talent show. The act earned him a 2nd place finish in the Spring talent show.

A strange assortment of characters: a few members of Drama Team ride in the parade to help promote their musical production, "Lil' Abner". Sitting on the tailgate are Hailey Coulter, Lindsay, Brusch and Cheryl Simmonds, while Kathryn Simmonds, Adrienne Fleury, Michelle Durrant, and Katrina Shroud hang out in the truck bed. The costumes came from Mrs. Foxtee's closet.

Getting roughed up in Performing Arts class, Sean Kettlewell, James Rourke, and Dustin Ackles display how drastic stage makeup can be.

James Brown (Michael Browning) makes an appearance at the History of Rock and Roll.

Ryan McGinnis, Nathaniel Edwards, William Kitchen, Troy Derrick, and Jacob Brown bust a move as they perform at the History of Rock and Roll. The group also took their act to the talent show, where they earned themselves a first place finish against other tough competition. The number also went over big with the crowd in the cafeteria.

Looking a little pale, Amanda Garza was one of many Performing Arts students demonstrating the countless number of ways stage makeup can be applied.

getting the word out

SADD, (Students Against Drunk Driving), goal was to help educate their peers and the community about the dangers of drinking and driving. Working together with MADD, (Mothers Against Drunk Driving) SADD participated in activities such as: fundraisers, the mock crash, a candle light vigil, and many other activities raise awareness in the community.

In combination SADD, MADD, fundraisers were a basis for largely expensive activities. Fundraising activities such as wrapping gifts at Christmas time, selling candy bars in the winter, washing cars in the spring, showing cars in the summer, and selling baked goods throughout the year were several SADD money making ventures. MADD and SADD shared the profits and man power for both to help get the word out.

A candle light vigil was held in December. It commemorated the people from around the community who have died in alcohol related driving accidents. Around the room of approximately 100 people, each person lit a candle representing someone who had passed on. This was an emotional event for the people who lost loved ones.

Hattie Monzo's favorite activity was, "going to different schools and talking about SADD and what we do to spread the word." To educate the community, "My favorite activity was when we went to Lakeside Park and did a haunted house," said Amy Henderson.

Perhaps one of SADD's biggest events takes place biannually. The 2000 Mock Crash simulated four drunken teens on prom night crashing into a vehicle carrying a mother, father, and child. The prom queen died and so did one of the infant child's parents. The juniors and seniors were taken out of their 6th hour classes to go out to the driver's training strip where the crash had already taken place. Ambulances rush to the mock crash scene, taking away the two dead people; three drunken teenagers and a distraught parent and screaming child. This powerful event discourages teens from drinking and driving on prom night.

Working side by side, SADD and MADD did their best to be an influential part in the fight against drunk driving.

Police officers give David Hendrickson a sobriety test. The goggles he is wearing actually make him feel and act like he is drunk.

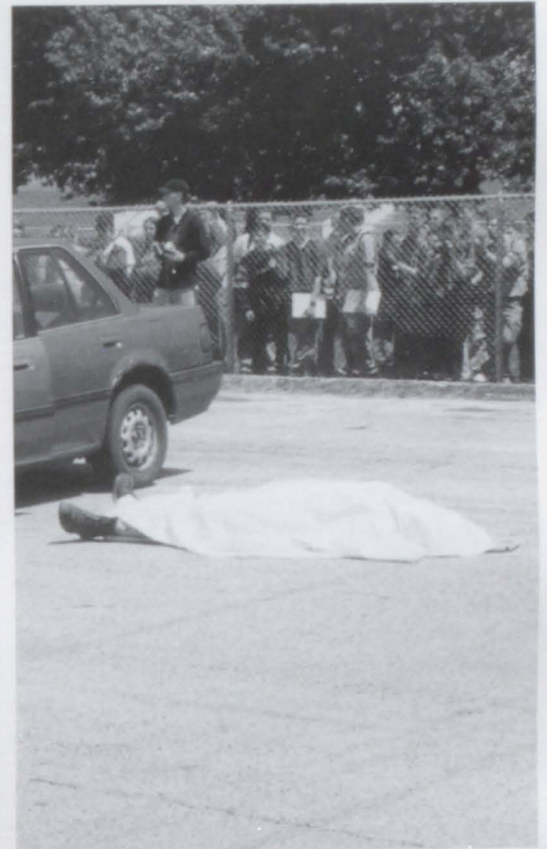

While conducting the second SADD meeting of the year in room 321, advisors Mr. Campbell and Mrs. Olstrander ask for participation in the upcoming events and share fundraising ideas. Mrs. Olstrander is the MADD representative, for the SADD students.

Preparing for the mock crash, Mrs. Olstrander (SADD's MADD mom) gets the groosm make-up ready. Dead prom queen, Nicole Miller lies very still as the make-up is applied and she recivies last minute instructions. She would later have have alcohol poured on her to add to the effect.

Lighthouse

News Room

In 1921 Port Huron High School formed a school informative newspaper called The Lighthouse. After sixty-eight years of being printed, The Lighthouse closed for eleven years, then resumed operations. The paper is still popular and has made a few adjustments to the course this year!

Kicking off the year with a brand new advisor, Mrs. VanderVoorde, the class got its first issue out just in time for Homecoming. There have been some changes though. Now, The Lighthouse team no longer goes through the Times Herald to have their issues published, but does it on their own. A change made, was the paper that stories are printed on, so the the cost was more efficient.

"This class is awesome," adds junior Christopher Hill. The staff consisted of twenty-four members including three of this year's foreign exchange students (Lea Widmer, Julie Puschman, and Christian Schwickert). Senior Editor Dorian Noble is "very pleased with this year's staff."

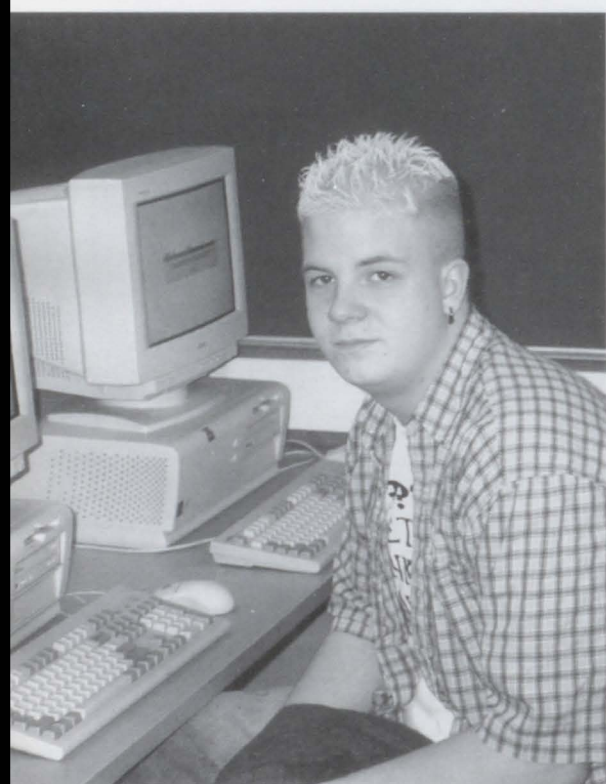

Lighthouse members scanned the halls for random PHHS students, asking their opinions on certain subjects and interests.

Inside Room 111, there are people busily typing away at their individual computers. Discussing issues such as sports, politics, academics, and the inside scoop of what happens in Port Huron and the rest of the county. The team is divided into sections, each carrying out a different task that needed to be accomplished to make sure each issue is a quality issue.

The majority of the staff was made up of upperclassmen, who have had experience with meeting deadlines and producing a final copy. The issue is distributed to anyone who wanted a copy, and were only based on a donation fee.

Last year the Lighthouse was only able to produce two issues, a large margin of difference from the previous year's eleven. Hoping to make a comeback and keep students informed on the happenings and mishappenings of PHHS, the Lighthouse staff worked "plenty of extra hours, to have a successful year", concluded junior Christopher Crackel.

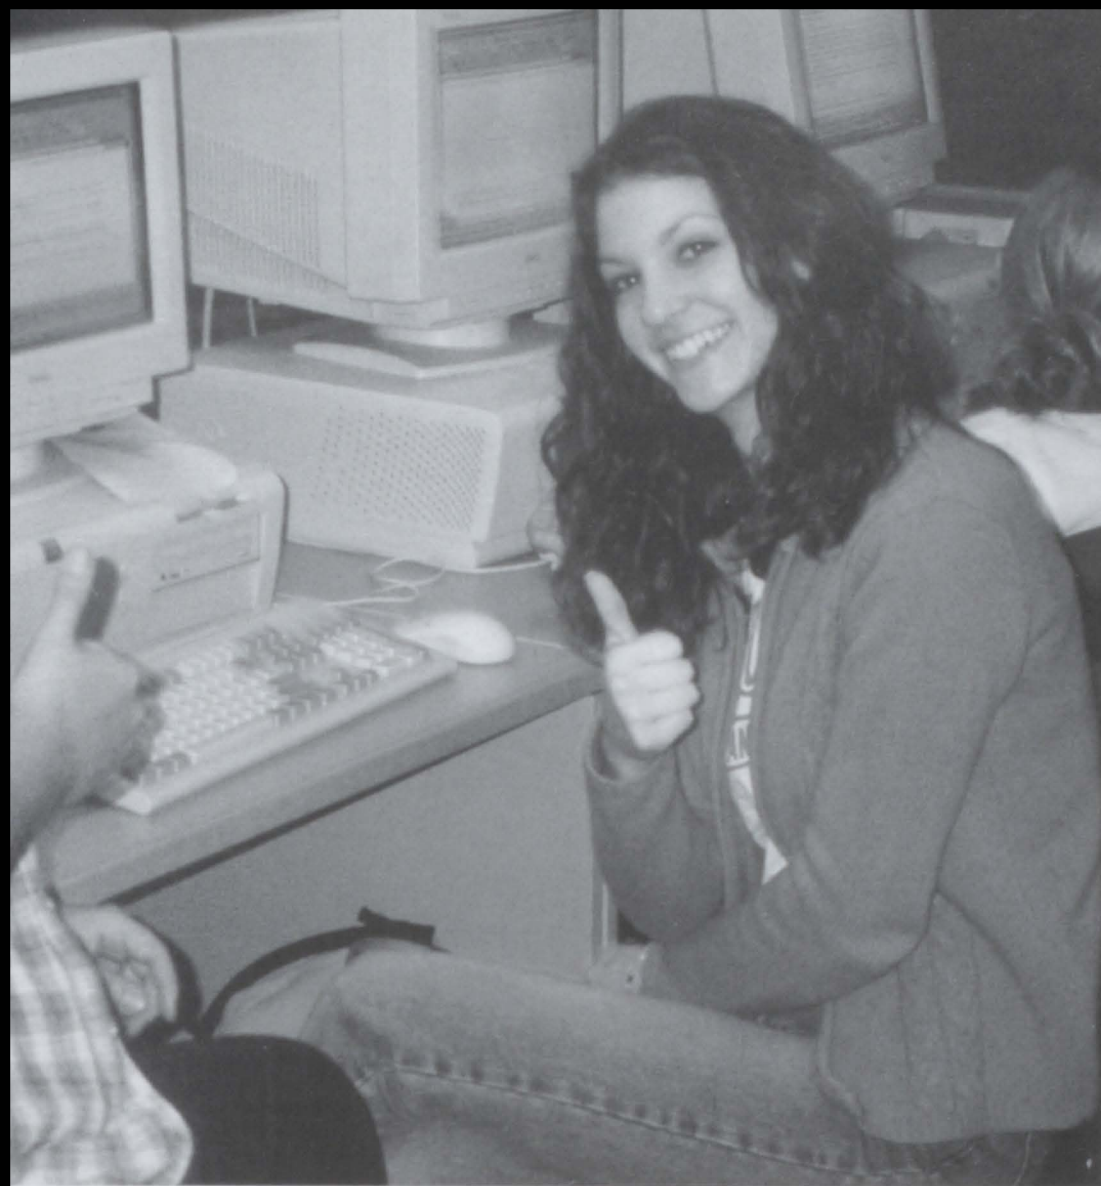

First year sports editor, junior Christopher Hill stares at a blank computer screen, contemplating his next sports articles while trying to get his creative juices running.

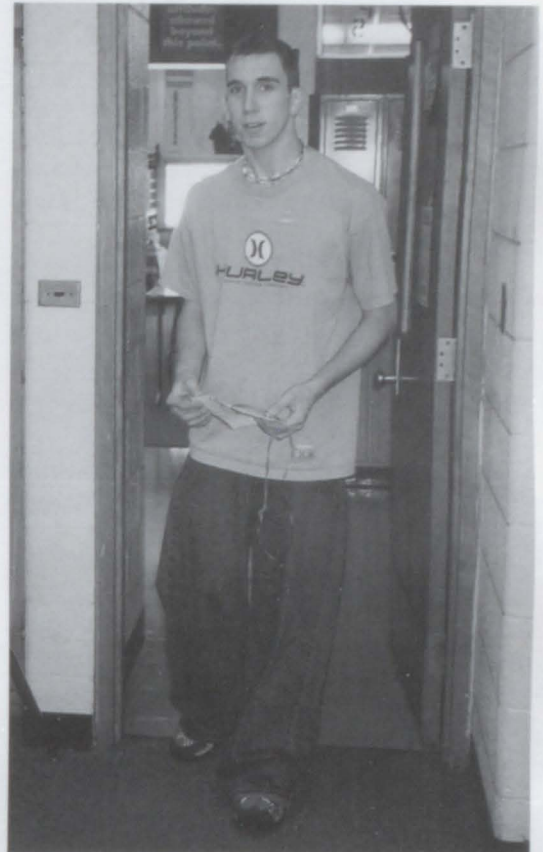

Senior Autumn Shimer practices her composition skills, in order to produce a successful article for an issue of The Lighthouse. Autumn writes articles to go in the Features section of the newspaper.

Each individual on the staff has their own computer to work on. This makes it easier for the class members to meet deadlines and produce issues more quickly.

Seniors Kelli Patterson and Paolo Sparacino work together on an article, making it perfect for the next issue being released.

Looking for PHHS students to question about various subjects, is senior Garrett Grindle getting information on an assortment of versatile material content.

Senior Lighthouse Editor Dorian Noble discusses an assortment of articles with staff members, junior Melanie Landschoot and senior Amy Howison. The girls converse on all subjects and articles for the next issue to be printed out. Concentrating, all three girls try to decide what is best for the staff and what PHHS students will enjoy the most.

Lighthouse advisor, Mrs. VanderVoorde keeps things organized and students on their toes to make deadlines successful and the class as enjoyable as possible.

Quiz Bowl

A Sport of the Mind

The Islamic sculpture that for the first time joined Christian and Jewish symbols as a part of the holiday display between the White House and the Washington Monument was damaged by vandals in 1997. Name both Islamic symbols depicted by the sculpture. Buzz!!! The crescent and the star is the correct answer.

Quiz bowl is a clash of four members from two different high schools in a highly competitive trivia game. This quickly paced game exercised and stimulated the mind's ability to recall information. In preparation, team members read trivia off of the internet, quizzed each other, anything their coaches had, and any other trivia questions they could get their hands on.

Teamwork was an essential element of the Port Huron's achievements. "The Quiz Bowl teams success was attributed to teamwork and knowledge," commented Dawn Marrocco. Many skills were focused on as a team to take the top spot in the district. Quickness was a great asset in Quiz Bowl, but only when the skill was used properly. If a team member in a regular match buzzed in before the question was finished and answered incorrectly, the team was docked five points from their score.

Quiz Bowl is like most of the other sports at Port Huron High--it too has a Junior Varsity team. Team members on the JV team can be in any grade and according to skill improvement can be moved from JV to Varsity throughout the year. The only difference between the two teams is that the JV moves at a slightly slower pace and the matches end with a lower score.

For the second year in a row, junior and team captain Ryan Westbrook and junior Roger Smith dominated the scoring on the Varsity team. Together, the two score about 75% of the points for the team. Other Varsity point scorers included Wyatt Myr, Paul Grattan, Dawn Marrocco, Michael Dionne, Angela Pohl, and Jeremy Miller.

Practice was held every Wednesday from November to the end of the season. Regular matches were held every Thursday in January and February. The regular tournament was in March and the Dan Degrow Tournament was held in April.

Listening to questions and snacking before a match, juniors Angela Pohl and Kristin Banker share Cheez-its and answer questions in Mr. Doyle's room.

Calculating a tough math question, Jacob Deboer, Jeremy Miller, and Angela Pohl, write quickly to figure out the answer.

Reading to his players a book of well known literature with which college bound students should be familiar is, Varsity coach Mr. Doyle. Junior Varsity coach Mrs. Doyle listens as her husband quizzes the players on the authors of the various books. Often the team members review material from a variety of subjects, math, literature, sports, science, and social studies are the most common.

After a match at Marysville High School, junior Roger Smith, with his Care Bear, and Sophomore Paul Grattan, wearing his sunglasses, are still tense from the match.

BPA/Close-Up

Planning for the future

Although the future may seem far away for many students, others start planning their future in many ways, including special classes they take at PHHS. Students are offered a variety of classes and organizations, to help them plan their future. Two of these organizations include BPA, and an out of school program Close-Up.

Every year students join the BPA organization for many different reasons but mainly to learn about business. This organization usually consists of 15-20 students. This year the BPA organization contains 16 seniors. Throughout the school year students in BPA enter into competitions. Regionals and States are just two of the competitions they go to every year in January and March.

When the students in BPA aren't participating in competitions, they are participating in various fundraisers and donations. The fundraisers they do include the most popular Sweetest Day carnation sale. Through the BPA organization students also donate items to the Humane Society.

Although BPA offers a variety of activities for the students to participate in, Renee Meredith is just one of the many students who exclaimed, "I joined BPA because I enjoy business."

Another way that many students start planning their future every year is by going on a trip to Washington D.C. with Close-Up. The Close-Up organization has been around for six years and every year it gives PHHS students the opportunity to see politics and government up close. One student who went on this trip this year was senior Sarajane Eppley who said, "I want to go on the Close-Up trip to see politics in action, and it seemed like the perfect opportunity." Students who sign up to go on this trip are from any grades. This year the grades range from Sophomore Andrew Fiedler, Juniors Angela Pohl, Kristin Banker, Michelle Lee, and Senior Sarajane Eppley. One student who went last year on this trip is Bradley Barret who explained, "It was good to go to Washington D.C. to see the monuments and to meet students from different dialects and Washington D.C. is where it all comes together."

After participating in a BPA fundraiser Port Huron High School senior Andrea Olvera ends up in top sales out of the BPA class for selling the most domino pizza cards.

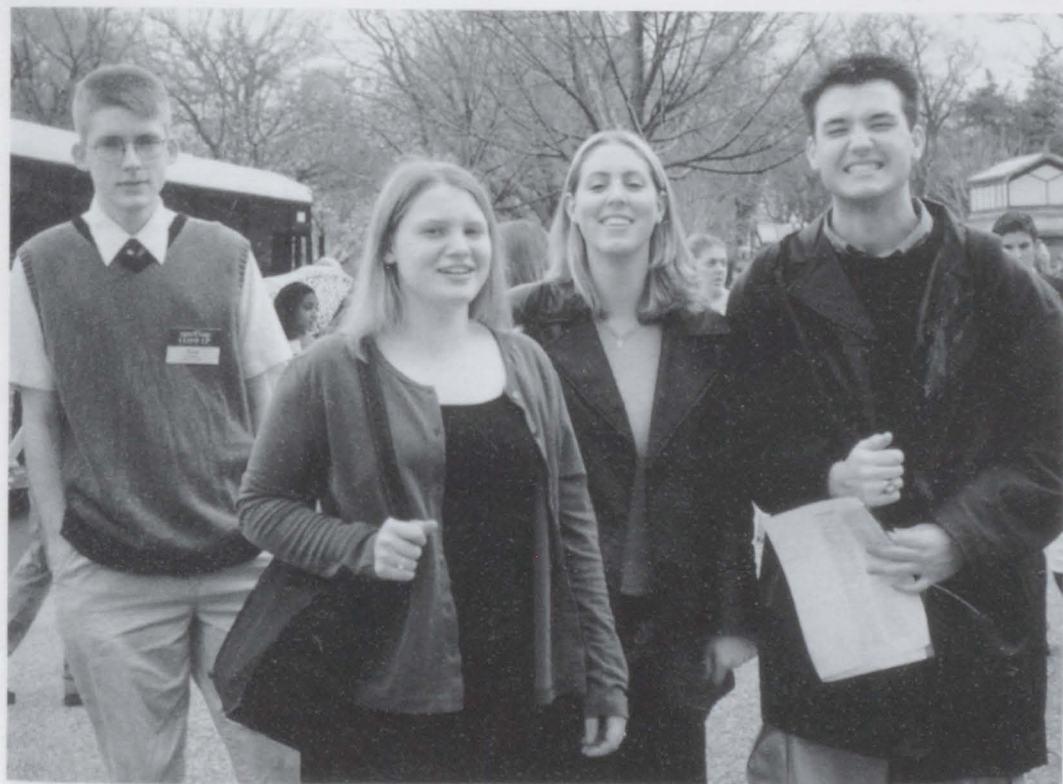

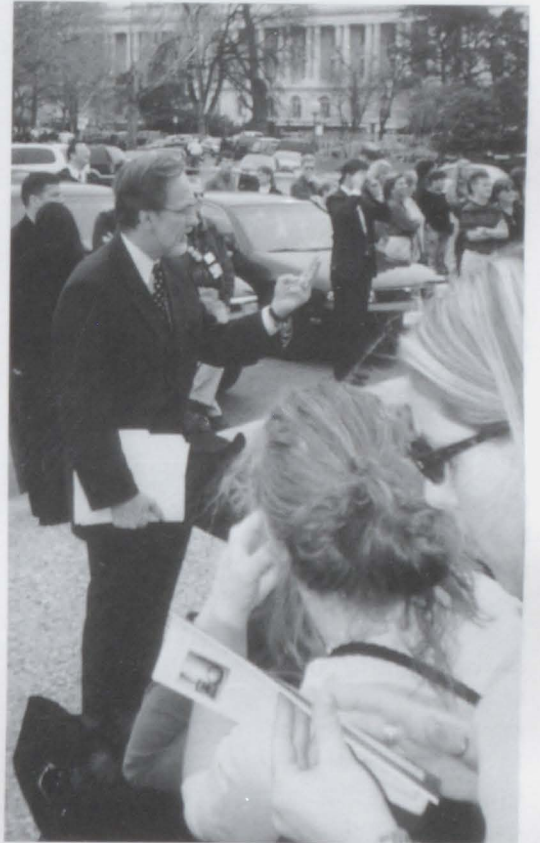

Waiting for students to buy carnations for Sweetest Day, BPA members Theresa Noel and Randi Schnell wait patiently outside of the Cafeteria during the lunch hours, while participating in the annual and most popular fundraiser at Port Huron High School by getting orders for the famous BPA Sweetest Day carnation fundraiser sale.

About to go on their delivery route around the school, BPA students Thomas Enright, Theresa Noel, Sally Raymond, and their helper Aaron Pung get ready to pass out the carnations ordered.

PHHS students listen to David Bonior on the steps of the House of Representatives.

On the Close-Up trip to Washington D.C to learn more about politics in action Port Huron High School and other schools join together to see how the government is ran, Port Huron High

NHS

One of the oldest and longest chapters

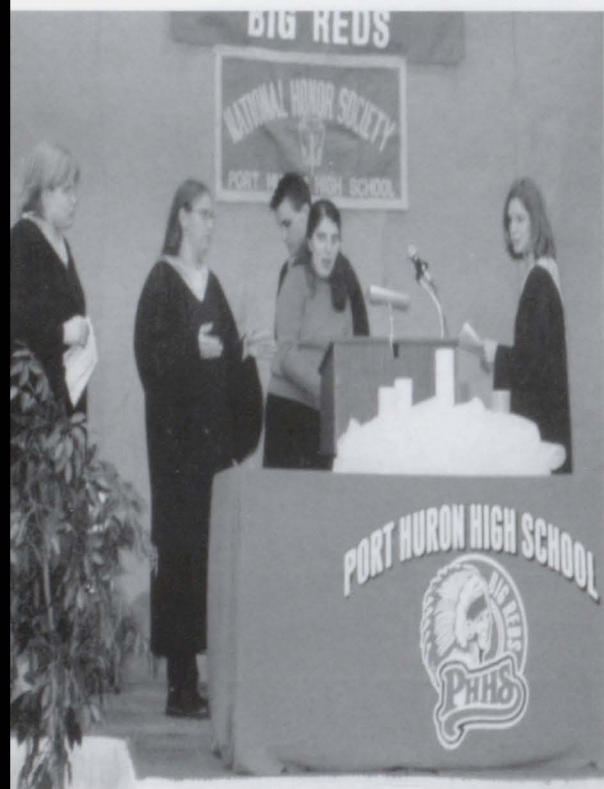

Seventy-eight years ago the National Honor Society chapter became a part of PHHS making it one of the oldest chapters of the NHS and one of the clubs with the longest history in the school. With only five members, who would ever think it would build to the 136 members that exists here today.

Even after withstanding the test of time the organization is still based on its four original pillars -- scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Once again, this year's National Honor Society has topped the previous number of members. Seventy-two were inducted this year alone. To be considered for NHS, students must have attended PH for two years with a GPA of 3.3 or higher and been a member of some other activity. In the fall letters are sent to students eligible to apply for the group. Next the students must take the initiative and have teachers rate them, write an essay, and fill out forms. Everything is taken to a committee where it is processed. Then comes the long awaited day. NHS officers go to the classes of the applicants and tap the new applicants, ordering them to drop everything and follow the officers. It is only after everyone is tapped that the good news it told. "Congratulations. You're accepted."

An official candle-light ceremony is held with current and new members to properly induct them. Much work is put into the ceremony. That night as the new members' names are called, they come to the podium and sign the official members book. Officers read the information on the four pillars and light the candle for each, then the president reads the law and lights the center candle. All NHS members' candles are lit from this one. The ceremony is over and the work officially begins again.

Members must take service opportunities to stay in the group. Eight hours worth of community services are needed for every semester to remain a member. Some of the activities that students participate in are Meals on Wheels, Toys for Tots, tutoring, the soup kitchen, Bowl A Thon, and Scholarship Luncheon. According to Gerilynn Burns her favorite service opportunity was "the car wash in the summer, because it was fun to get together with all my friends, doing things to help both the community and NHS."

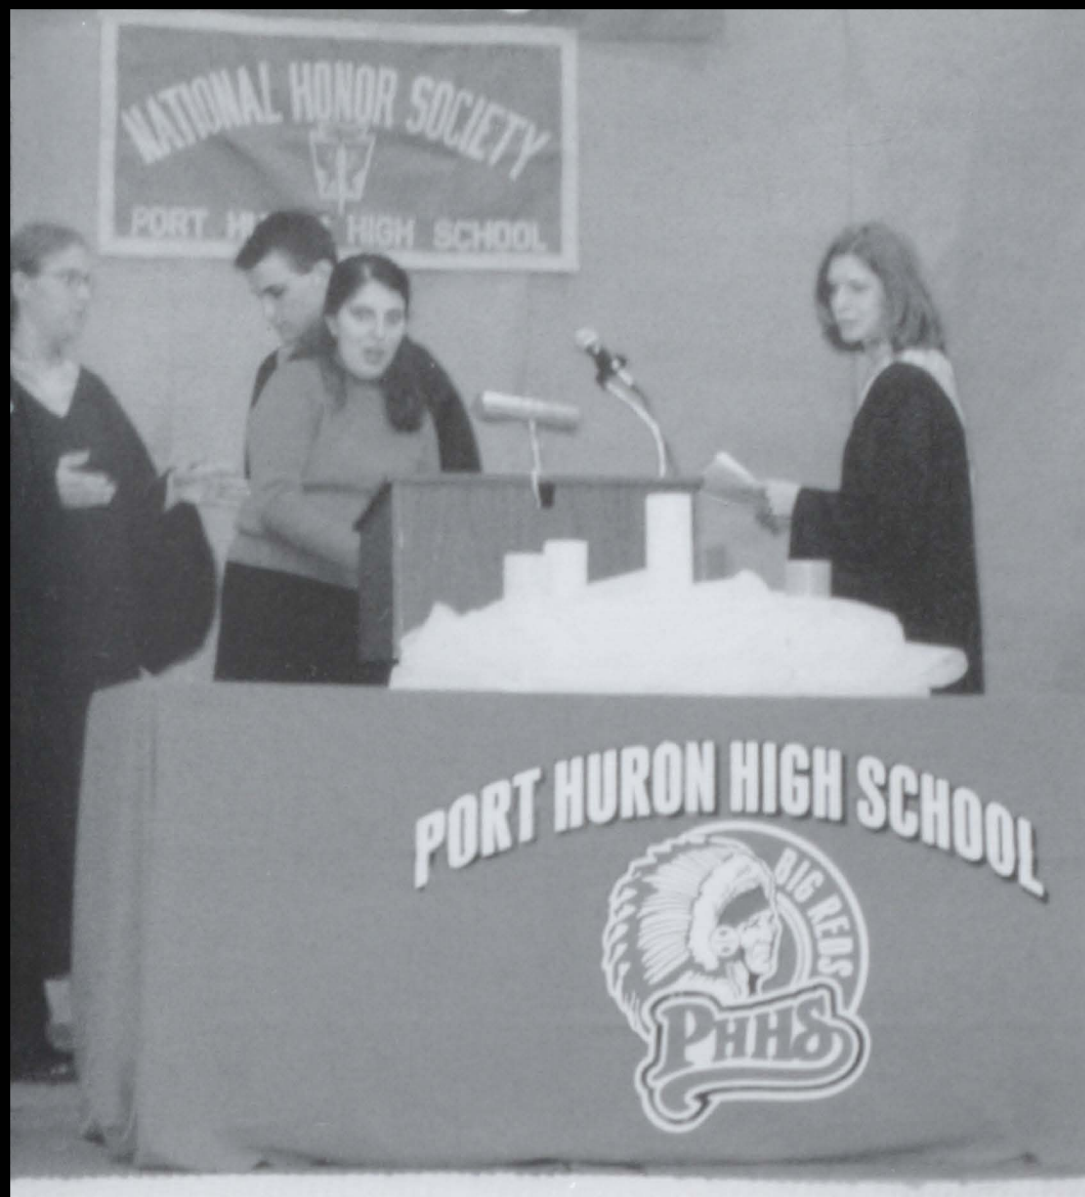

Entering the gym for the Induction Ceremony Megan Conlan and Amie Dickinson walk with pride.

Equestrian

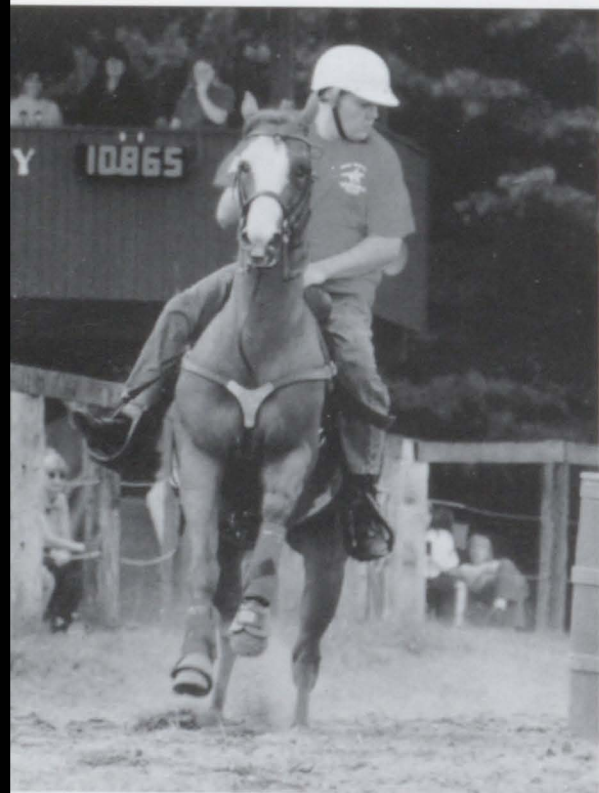

they're not horsing around

To prepare for competition, Junior Sara Lynch describes the detail which must be paid attention to. "It takes a long time to get ready, especially for showmanship. The horse must be clipped and bathed before the day of the show...I have a gray horse and had to use baby powder to get her really white." Needless to say, there is more to being an equestrian than just riding horses. Few people understand the degree of dedication it takes to be part of the equestrian team and just how much effort is put into each and every show or competition. Also unbeknownst to many is the exactness that each rider and horse is judged upon.

There are three basic divisions of riding. Western riding encompasses such events as bareback, reining, and equitation, which is the actual showing of the horse. Saddleseat includes equitation, bareback, and also pattern. The third category is Huntseat, which involves jumping over fences. Trails, flag racing, the Clover Leaf race, and the two person relay are collectively known as the Speed Events. All of these events were part of the Michigan Interscholastic Horse Association District Meet. Here, the Big Reds came in second place with 562 points as compared with the first place team's (Yale) 626 points and the third place team's (Eisenhower) 381 points. Riders were judged on appearance, posture, the posture of their horse, and of course, the technical maneuvers.

Though competition is a prominent aspect of Equestrian, self improvement and team work also factor into the equation. Many of the team members have been around horses for the majority of their lives and are pleased to find others with similar interests. Sophomore Timothy Arnold commented on his favorite part of Equestrian, "Evaluating and improving myself. Everybody helps you learn new things." Junior Earl Hanselman, who has been riding horses for ten years, says that he benefits from the teamwork involved. Colleen Smith (2004) sums up her experience. "I've been with horses all of my life, but nothing has been as fun as riding on the Equestrian team."

Riding his horse, Impress-a-puff, Timothy Arnold steers around a barrel at the Macomb County 4-H Horse Park.

PAC

Helping Out

Meals on Wheels, helping out at elementary schools, and planting flowers at a local cemetery on Memorial Day. These acts are the work of the Progressive Action Committee. "Our main goal is to serve others selflessly. We hope to influence others by our positive contributions. For the past few years it has been a great organization to be involved in." These are the sentiments echoed by Seniors Amy May and Treasurer Bethany Rasmussen.

PAC, which was formed by PHHS students during the 1997-98 school year, has become a prominent group in the community. Although there is work to be done, PAC is a good way for students to be involved beyond the school's doors. Membership is open to all Port Huron High students, regardless of grade or involvement in other school activities. Even though there is work to do, members have fun doing the projects and having the occasional party. "When I was a freshman, I had to join PAC because my sister and her friends were the ones who started it. I stayed in because it's a lot of fun; I like getting out and doing stuff in the community, and its just a great way to get involved," said PAC President Jeffrey Fogal.

Many different organizations outside of the school contact PAC for help. Michigamme and Woodrow Wilson are two elementary schools that frequently look to PAC for assistance with school functions. The Halloween assembly at Michigamme and Woodrow Wilson's Thanksgiving feast have become favorites. At Michigamme, PAC members worked at games and did face painting. Seniors Jeffrey Fogal and Misty Pelc even invented a game that is going to be used next year. Killing some time, the two PH students started bouncing tennis balls off of a basketball backboard and catching them in metal cans that were part of the game they were working. "It is refreshing to be able to go out into the community and help people with things. This year we went to Michigamme and helped out at their Halloween carnival and to Woodrow Wilson to help with their Thanksgiving feast. These are wonderful opportunities for high schoolers to do. I just hope that it doesn't stop after this year," said Senior Vice-President Misty Pelc.

The plot thickens as the sports season opens with a new series of conflicts. The football players go head to head and the basketball teams shoot the hoops, so Big Reds meet the struggles. Opening season brought the aches and pains of conditioning. Time nearly evaporated as hours of practice were added to playing and travel time. It was even tougher this year because school started earlier; schools did not change game times, so athletes lost sleep when they had away games. The upside was that athletes missed less sixth hour time since classes got out earlier. Even summer vacation was not pure vacation; it was cut short for fall athletes. Many students gave up a month to tryout and practice with teammates. As always the beginning of each season brought dreams of winning the State Title. For cross country team members Jerome Recker, Adam Roach, and Julie Puschmann this hope lived on as they took part in the State Finals held in Holly. It also came true for the Varsity Girls' Basketball Team which participated in Districts held at Dakota High School. But for others this dream was shattered due to a tough season.

Boys' Tennis

MAC Blue Champs

Overachieving is probably the best word you can use to describe the tennis team this year. They were not expected to win the MAC Blue division and were not expected to win the MAC Blue Tournament, but they did.

This year's tennis team had a lot of depth according to Mr. Berra who coached the Varsity Tennis team for the 2000 season. "There weren't any stars and there was very little difference in ability between our first through twelfth players."

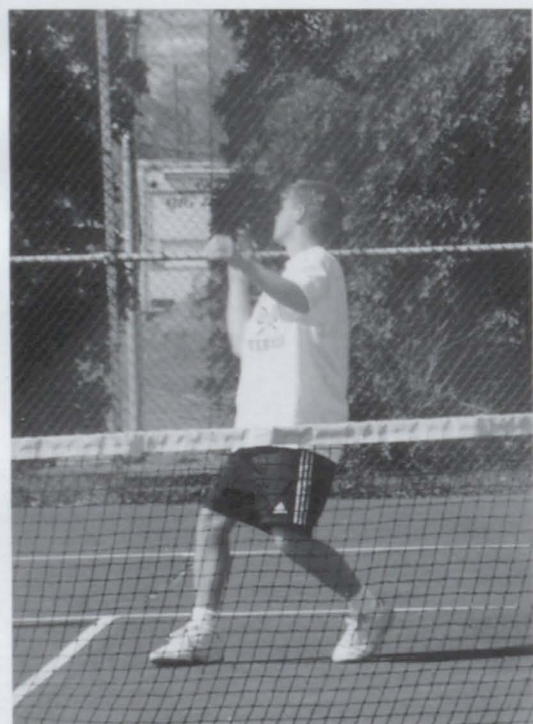

Hard work and dedication were the keys to an improved Varsity team according to Mr. Berra who said, "The players worked very hard indoors this year and this was the difference as we won our league and MAC tournament."

This year there was an increase of fifteen people that came out for the tennis team. "We had a greater number of players this year, thirty-three total," said Mr. Berra.

Varsity team member Paul Shymko sums up the 2000 season. "We started off kind of slow, but thanks to brilliant coaching we picked up the work ethic and became co-MAC champs."

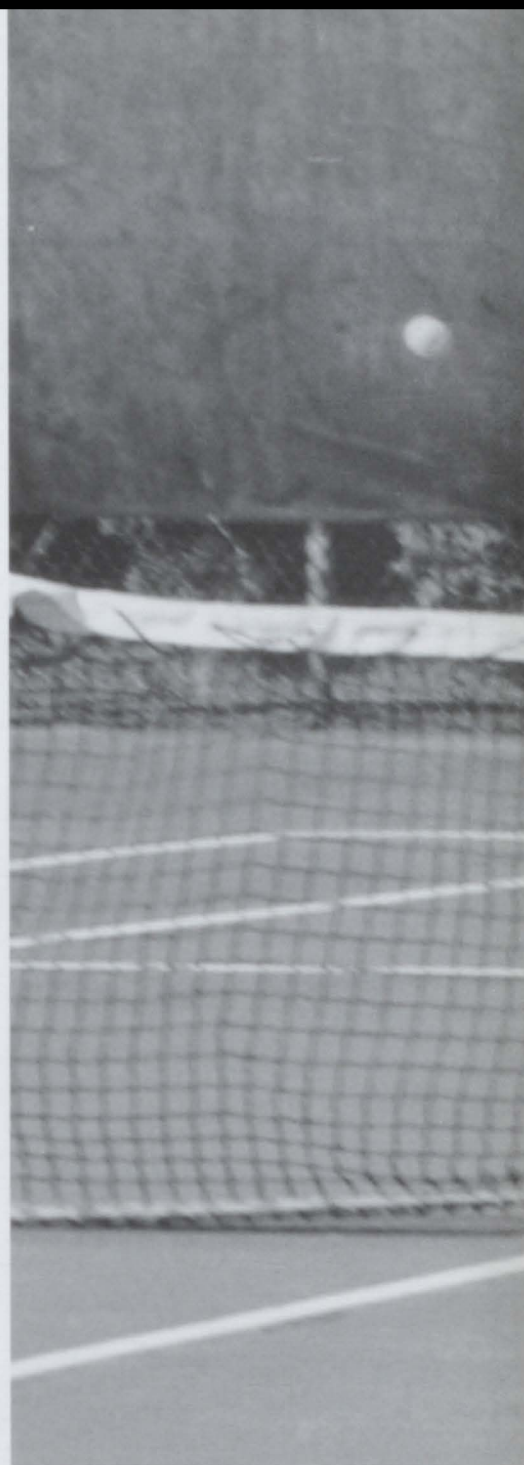

Moving toward the ball, Patrick McKeever prepares to hit a forehand smashing on to the opponent's court.

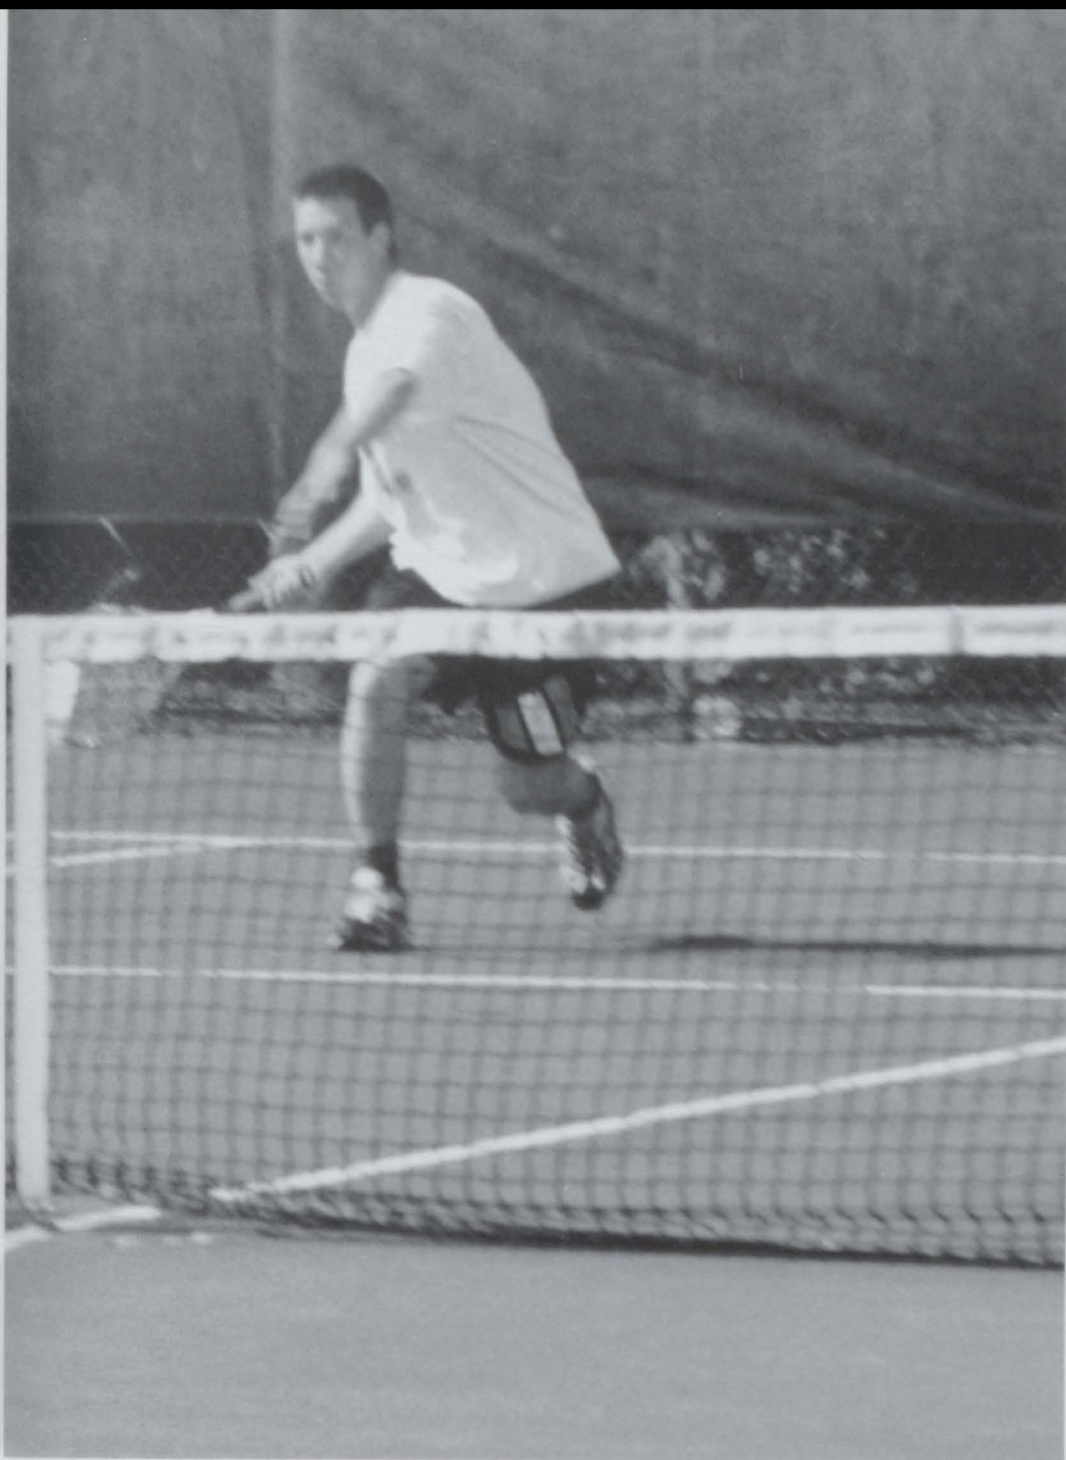

Dropping back to return the opponent's shot, Varsity team member Jeffrey Miles sends the ball soaring over the net.

Winding up for the serve, Varsity singles player Dustin Sturdevan smashes home another point for the Big Reds.

Boys' Track

From Start to Finish

Working one and a half hours each day, five days a week, pushing themselves to the limit, the 2000 Boys Track Team pulled a record of 4 wins and 3 losses. Beginning in March it took two weeks to get the Varsity players reacclimated before their first indoor meets at Saginaw Valley and MSU Invitationals.

Regular outdoor track meets began in April against Chippewa Valley at home. Players were greeted by snowy, cold weather. The best memory of the season for James Zimmer was "when (he) had to run against Chippewa Valley in the snow and won." For their first meet Junior Varsity members joined Varsity for the Chippewa Valley game.

Along with the triumphs work was needed. Dedication was a definite key to keep the team together, whether it was just showing up for practice or pushing for better performance. Jerome Recker said, "We need more dedication as a team. Team leaders need to set a good example and get others to follow them."

Expectations for the seasons were high. The team had hopes of being Mac White Champs again for the fourth time in a row. Unfortunately, the team didn't make it that far. But there's always hope for next year.

Sprinting the last leg of the race, foreign exchange student Nils Razum gives it his all to keep his place.

Running in the shuttle relay, Troy Perek gives his team his all while pushing it to the finish line.

Girls' Track

Showing Their Strength

The shots were fired, the races began, the field events were on the go, as the snow continued to fall. The season began with cold, wet, snowy, weather.

These conditions challenged the players to their fullest. With the weather came pulled muscles, wet mats, and slippery throwing areas. Before the meets the seniors would gather everyone together to pray for everyone to do their best and add a word about the weather. Only the L'Anse Creuse meet was canceled, and that was due to the lightning.

Not letting the weather get to her, Allina Portis broke her school record in discus of 117'9". In one day, Allina went 121' to 125' to 127' to set the new record at 131'3". Allina Portis commented, "I feel good about my record I did it because I loved it not because I wanted it." Allina was the only girl to qualify from PHHS for States.

Practices ran about an hour and a half, five days a week, unless there was a meet. The players warmed up together with a lap around the track and stretching out. Then the players divided up into their events, long distance, sprinters, jumpers, and throwers.

Robin Forbes stated that her goal during the season was, "To get better endurance, try my hardest, and to make it to every practice."

Latricia Price, and Kimberly Churchill, start off full of momentum, against Grosse Pointe North in the 100 meter dash.

With a lead ahead of the rest, Friederike Boll maintains her speed and runs in for the home stretch.

Softball

Team work

New coaches have affected the JV and Freshmen Softball Team. Ms. Shovan started coaching Freshmen Softball while Mr. Hernandez, coach for twenty years, started his first year as a PHHS JV coach. Mean while the varsity team has the experience of Mr. Popa.

We asked the coaches why do they like to coach softball, Mr. Popa states, "I enjoy helping the players to become better and blending the different personalities together to form a team." Mr. Hernandez states that "Some goals I hope to accomplish is to have fun with the team and to learn the basics of softball."

During practices for the game, the coaches have the players study the basic fundamentals like defensive and offensive drills which include; catching, running, and batting. Being on a softball team or any team helps the players get along with other teammates and helps them learn what team work is all about with help from the coaches. Theresa Orr says that she likes softball because, "I like working as a team and I love the sport. I've played it forever." Coaches play a big role on a team. They help the players stay focused and they also help guide them to the bases. The coaches keep the players on their toes to play good softball.

Baseball

Full Count

Excitement of close games and tough competition, with a mix of experience led the boys' baseball teams to a respectable season.

With tryouts beginning during the first week of March the boys knew that they had lots of hours of learning and perfecting the game ahead of them. Pitching was the needed skill, but with good hitting, fielding, and a solid work ethic the boys were able to pull through on some of the close games.

The Varsity team had a busy schedule that consisted of 28 games, plus districts. Mr. Owens and the team practiced after school for two hours on the evenings that they didn't have a game. There the boys worked on situations and the fundamentals of the game. The boys ended their season with 8 wins to 20 losses.

Junior Varsity had a trying season with 8 wins to 16 losses. "We practiced everyday and by doing so we built up our confidence and respect for each other," stated team captain Scott Dwyer. "All of us have been playing for a long time, but every year it gets tougher," added Jon Beem.

The freshmen team coached by Mr. Mullins worked endlessly at practices and got their first dose of playing high school baseball. The team ended with 4 wins to 12 losses.

Girls' Soccer

Under a New Wing

"Sweat plus sacrifice equals success." In other words, if you give the coaching staff and your teammates your best effort, you will more than likely gain success. Varsity team member Laura Slingerland came up with this simple equation for soccer.

Everyone had a different way of preparing for athletic events. Varsity member Brooke Schnur and her teammates had a very unique way of preparing for kickoff. "Each game we were given a different quote to put in our socks. It really helped to motivate us."

This year Mr. Jeremy Macejewski made his debut coaching the Varsity team. Amanda Jock describes Mr. Macejewski's coaching as "more intense and more competitive than playing on the JV level." After three years coaching experience with the boys' Varsity soccer team, Mr. Macejewski brought a whole new style to the girls' team.

The JV team made a lot of improvements under Mr. Reno's coaching. JV team member Kristie Krug comments on the 2000 season, "We had a very productive season, it was a lot of fun and everyone on the team learned new skills."

Boys Soccer

Heading in a New Direction

"Focus!!!" This was what the 2000 Boys Soccer Team heard every day at practice and games from the first year Varsity coach, Mr. Reno who previously coached Junior Varsity. The Junior Varsity coaching position was filled by Mr. Jock, a community member who has a daughter at Port Huron High School.

From extensive early morning conditioning to late after school practices, "we were ready to play and compete with anyone in our league", according to senior Chad Langolf. Summer practice hours went from 8 till noon five days a week.

Opening the league against Mt. Clemens resulted in a 1-1 tie. According to

Mr. Reno "We should have done more things in practice to get more focused because we expected it to be easy and it was not."

The team began to work together and focused on being a team through the experience of the seven returning seniors, and the end result was that they placed third in their league, which consisted of seven teams. Their final league record was 5-3-4, which was the highest placing in the league ever for a Port Huron High Big Reds Varsity Soccer Team.

Awaiting to make a sly move to get the ball which is hanging in mid air is Junior Varsity Foward Michael Fisher.

Concentrating on controlling the ball and making another scoring opportunity for the offense is senior Chad Langolf against Marysville.

Boys' Cross Country

A Major Turnaround

After back-to-back 2-8 seasons, this year's team stepped up improving to a 4-4 record. This was not surprising considering the team's average time dropped more than a minute.

The reasons for this turnaround from last year's team were new talent and improvement. Leading the new talent was Aaron Pung, Trevor Devooght, and Rookie of the Year Shane Reinhard. Glenn Hart played a big part in the improvement of this team winning Most Improved Runner for the second year in a row. None of this would have been possible if not for the contributions of teammates Joseph Messenger, Zammer Erving, and Wyatt Myr.

Junior Adam Roach set the new Port Huron High School Cross Country Record at States this year, beating the old record set by Jason Wilkins five years ago. The record is now set twelve seconds faster at a 16:06. Senior captain Jerome Recker also improved his time at the State Finals. He took thirty seconds off his time, from a 17:12 to a 16:42, to place eighth on the all time list for the Big Reds.

Keeping stride with the opposing runners, junior Adam Roach races toward a fourth place finish at the MAC White Meet.

Taking time out of his race at Metro Beach to pose for the yearbook, senior Wyatt Myr throws up a peace sign.

Returning home from the Regionals competition, Senior captain Jerome Recker is exhausted from his state-qualifying race.

Girls' Cross Country

Pushing the Limit

It all started in the summer with Mr. Moger's Summer Running Miles. During the warm weather the girls were required to run between two and five miles a day and at least one hundred miles by the end of August. A week before school started it was off to camp for three days of running and lots of nutritious food. Camp ended with the Lexington Road Race.

A normal day of practice for the team consisted of first warming up, next a stretch and either a quality long distance run or intervals, and lastly a cool down and a quick stretch.

With the loss of seven key seniors the young team that mostly consisted of first and second year runners still had a successful season. They came out of the season with nine wins and two losses.

One of the highlights for the team was German exchange student Julie Puschmann placing sixth at regionals. This qualified her to run at the state finals where she placed 33rd overall, running her all time best time of 19:15, putting her right behind Delachaise Roosevelt on the top 10 all time.

Cora Armstrong and Haran Stanley work together to try and get the lead before heading into the woods during a varsity race.

Approaching the first mile mark, sophomore Michelle Durrant goes for a win to help her team during a home course meet.

Girls' Tennis

New To The MAC Red

After two consecutive titles for the Varsity ladies in the MAC White, they moved up into the MAC Red. "This year was a transition year for us. Going from the MAC White to the MAC Red, was definitely a dramatic change in skill from the opposing team," said Melissa Brown, one of the ten seniors on the Varsity team.

This year the Varsity ladies hosted their own tournament, the Big Reds Fall Classic. The team proudly claimed the first place trophy. "This tournament was great. We hosted it and we came out on top!" said Junior Danielle Ongie.

The JV team had a hard fought season, facing tough opponents Grosse Pointe South, Grosse Pointe North, and Port Huron Northern. The Junior Varsity squad sported a 9-4 win-loss record for the 2000 season. The Junior Varsity team played in the Romeo Tournament and took home the first place trophy.

Whether it's from parents, fellow teammates, or coaches, many words of advice are passed on to the players. In the famous words of Mr. Haas, "Concentrate, relax, and don't get down on yourself."

Injuries Hurt

OUCH! That hurts! The JV season had many player injuries throughout the season, causing them to sit out during games. There were all kinds from Dominic Costa and Mark Colgan's broken ankles, to Tomas Navarro's shoulder injury. That's not all though--there were dislocated kneecaps, back problems, concussions, and broken fingers. This made it harder to play games, with fewer players allowed to be substituted for. This caused players to become tired and not able to come out and rest. The JV team started with only 26 players from the usual 42, and ended the season 1-7-1.

Others get pumped up while participating in "the Bull in the Ring" hitting drill. There was also the drive to keep in shape. The Freshmen's two and a half hour practices paid off as they ended their season with 7 wins and 2 losses.

Through the extremes

"Through rain, sleet, and extreme heat, we gave it our all," stated William Williams. The weather for this year's season was not always beneficial. The rain made the field wet and the ball slippery. This did not stop the players from playing.

They practiced about four hours every night. They did drills that included ones with special teams, defensive groups, team defense, offensive groups, and conditioning. Linebackers and defensive ends had a drill that includes the "Bull Ring", where they run head on into each other.

Taking some players out of games were injuries to the knee, collarbone, and a few dislocated shoulders. This did not stop Brad Marsh and John Delgado from coming to all the games and practices to support the team and help out with what they could.

There were many awards given to the players. Receiving the Tubby Meyers (MVP), and the first team MAC White awards were Donald Thelmas and Troy Peyer. The Harry Smith (Sportsman) went to Ryan McInnis. Jacob Brown showed improvement picking up the Bob Hayes award. With a MAC White Honorable Mention was Junior David Zarling and Junior Del Bullard.

Teamwork is Essential

Only losing six games their entire season, the lady junior varsity team had another good year. The freshmen team's record was a little different, but they won two games and came within three points for other games.

One of the biggest success factors of the game of basketball is teamwork. Teamwork is one of the JV ladies strong points. Most of the girls played on the same team the year before so they knew how one another plays and what each individual is capable of doing.

The freshmen learned it is harder to know what each person is good at, since they didn't play together last year or meet until the summer at basketball camp. According to Kristie Hutchins, one of the best things about being on the Big Red team is the "pride of teamwork."

Each member had her own personal goal. For Robin Forbes it was "using my height to make more baskets."

Each team had different things that they enjoy about practices and games. Freshmen loved making "mad three pointers."

Basketball

Hustle. Hustle. Hustle

On all sports' teams, teamwork is always an important factor to winning. Improvement was the theme for this year's varsity team, improving their record by 13 wins from the previous year.

For 2000, the team had fourteen players; two sophomores, four juniors, and eight seniors. The girls practiced every week day for two hours on conditioning, plays, and offensive and defensive drills.

"Encouragement from fans and peers increased the team morale and made the season very enjoyable", replied Mr. Popa. The players determination to win and their coaches leadership gave them the will to play.

This year, experience was on the girls' side, which added to their advantage in the division. The team ended with the 15 wins. A highlight of the season was participating in districts at Dakota High.

"The season as a whole has been very exciting and everyone has jelled together extremely well. It's a wonderful way to end the season for the seniors on the team. It's been awhile since PH basketball teams have finished so well," concluded Jessica Krug.

After the halftime buzzer, the girls and Mr. Popa head into the auxiliary gym for a pep talk to discuss strategies.

Overcoming Adversity

The winning attitude expressed by both the JV and Freshmen teams this year was the key to the Big Reds success. The goal for the coaching staff of the two basketball teams was to prepare their players for the varsity level of competition.

Getting off to a successful start doesn't even begin to describe the Freshman season. The coaching staff for this year's team consisted of the returning coach, Mr. Arcieri who received help from his assistant coach, Mr. Rathje. The team started off with an undefeated record for the first 6 games. Mr. Arcieri's explanation for his team's hot streak was simply repeating this catchy motivational phrase throughout the season. "Don't just do it, do it right!!"

The beginning of the year was filled with numerous injuries and adversity for the Junior Varsity team. The team got off to a slow start but managed to work their way to a .500 record halfway through the season. JV Coach Mr. Dickinson commented on the team's winning attitude. "As a team we are improving our technical skills and are becoming fundamentally sound."

Boxing out their Stevenson opponents, the JV team battles for the offensive rebound and possession for the ball.

Shooting the baseline jumpshot in his opponent's face, junior Jay Oliver sinks the basket for two points.

Varsity Basketball,

Team Unity

Off to the Palace! This year was the first time the Boys' Varsity Team got to go to the Palace. "It was a good experience for the guys because it gave them a chance to play on a larger court with a more professional atmosphere," stated Mr. Semelsberger. There were about 600 fans, the most the Palace has had for a high school game turnout.

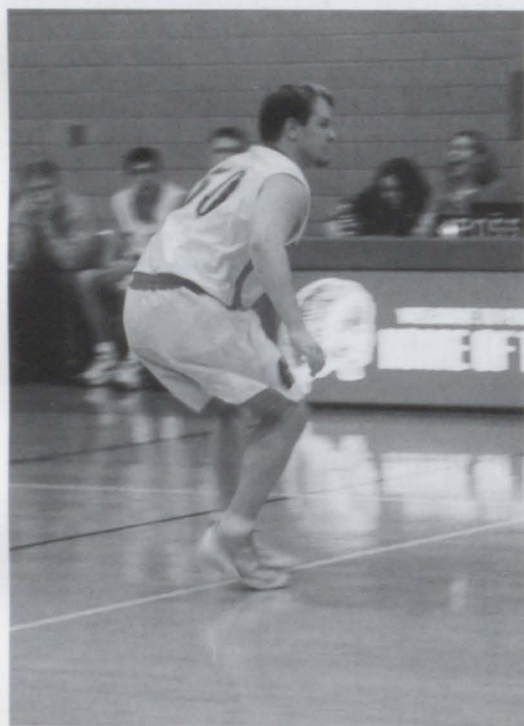

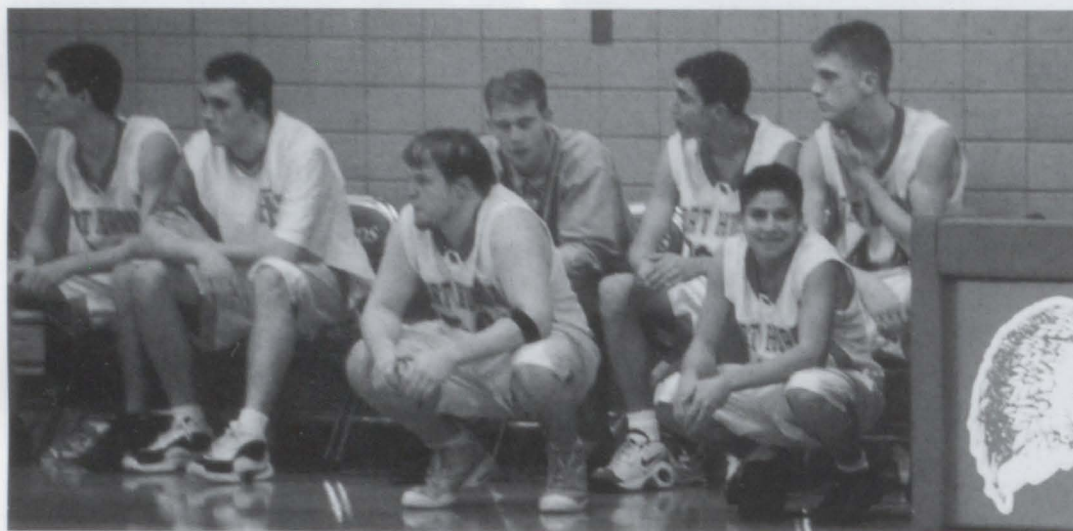

This season was Mr. Moger's twentieth year of coaching Boys' Varsity Basketball. "I do it for the love of the game," commented Mr. Moger.

During the week the guys practiced two hours a day, three days a week and had an average of two games a week. The team focused on "practicing team unity, studying the other teams and talking about how they play," stated Mr. Moger. Practice was not over for these guys when the weekend came around. On Saturday mornings the team went to Central and Chippewa to help coach the sixth grade boys, preparing them for their upcoming years of playing the game.

William Williams had an individual goal, "to make a double-double (ten points and ten rebounds in one game)."

Waiting patiently, Adam Hoskins and Aurelio Pena make a switch with their teammates, while the others keep their eyes on the game.

Taking a change in direction, forward Adam Hoskins defends Stevenson from getting the ball down the court.

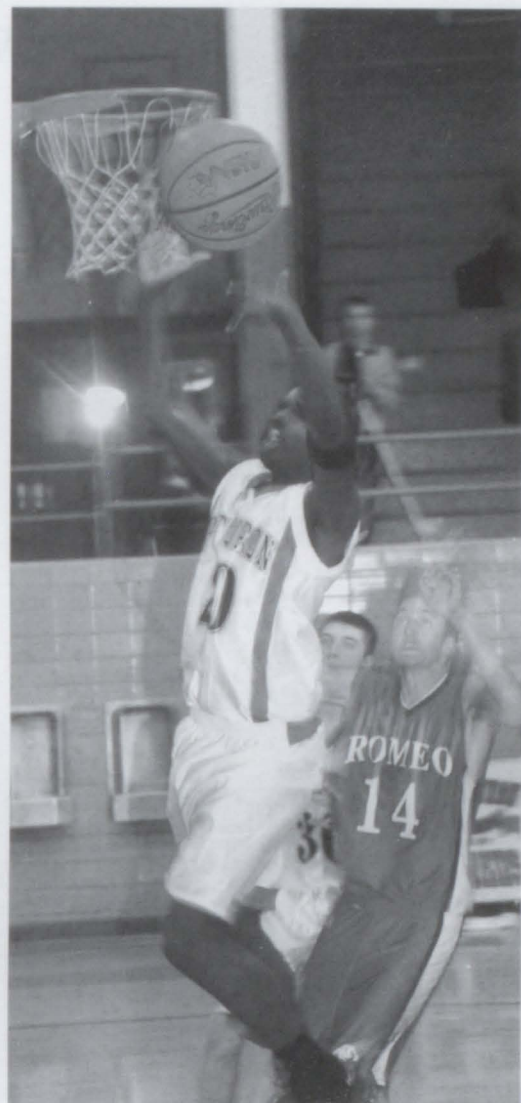

Looking for an unblockable pass, guard Clarence Miller pivots around on his foot to avoid Romeo's defense.

Hockey

Team Expectations

Sitting in McMorran's Main Arena, hockey spectators could be heard shouting "Go Big Reds" and "that was a poor call Referee"! but whatever was being shouted from the stands did not amount to the intensity on the ice, that intensity was always present during home games.

Assistant Captain Shaun Spana, said of his teammates, "We're rebuilding and we are young. We have been working on our speed and defense. It takes time to learn to play the game with new people every year."

Individual abilities and years of experience, lead the PHHS hockey team to a more productive year than those in the past. With a blend of talent the team worked every night of the week on conditioning and improving their game individually and together as a whole.

Junior Daniel Matthews adds "we've had our injuries and overcome them, we may not be the best team out there, but we still work hard and I have faith in this team."

The Big Reds had 26 games and participated in several weekend tournaments. "We struggle, but in the future, I'm sure that we'll have a great team that everyone will want to come watch," added Paul Shymko.

Second year team member, David Hering gets in a tough spot with a defender and struggles to keep hold of the puck.

Preparing to enter a heavily guarded Viking net zone, the Big Reds hockey team puts up a valiant effort to score.

Senior first string goalie, Paul Shymko, breaks quickly after an attempted shot, to adjust his gloves and prepares for a return to the net.

Senior captain Robert Esch makes a careful decision of who to pass the puck, to set themselves in scoring position.

The Junior Varsity team adopted last year's Freshman coach, Mr. Dennis. Coach Jeff Dennis moved up one level with the girls to JuniorVarsity. The team was able to function as more of a unit due to the fact that it was the second year in a row that the group was working together. According to sophomore Kristy Urie, "Our strength this year is that we have the same coach as last year so he knows our personal strengths and weaknesses."

Cheryl Lay was the assistant coach for the Freshman Volleyball Team with Mr. Dennis for the previous year. This year she took over as head coach for the freshman

Varsity Volleyball

Winning Ways

The Varsity Volleyball team started its twenty-sixth season at Port Huron High School and fourteen years under the coaching of Mrs. Falk.

Amy Howison predicted changes in the season, "Mrs. Falk puts more emphasis on the offensive and the plays."

From fifteen members on previous teams, down to a selection of ten members, the team is able to get closer. "We were able to play more as a team without so many players and grow closer as a team," stated Senior Jennifer Beach on the smaller team roster.

The girls practiced everyday for an hour and a half. The practices consisted of working on offensive and defensive strategies, conditioning, and individual skills. "The practices are strenuous, but it is definitely well worth it because it made us a better team - as a team and individually," Junior Danielle Ongie said, on her personal feelings about practices.

Senior Dorian Noble had high hopes, "The team should do better if we play like we want it and keep our heads up!"

Co-Captain and Senior Jenelle Biga tips the ball back over to her anticipating opponents' side of the net.

Wrestling

50 Years at PH

During the first home meet on December 7, 2000 wrestling kicks off their fiftieth year anniversary. In between the JV and Varsity meets, former members were introduced to the crowd which happened to be one of the largest turn outs ever. 1951 was the year the Big Red Wrestling team was born. Continuing the tradition fifty years later, Mr. Mossett "worked to make this season a success." Since it marks the fiftieth year anniversary, the team and its coaches hope to capture the MAC White Championship.

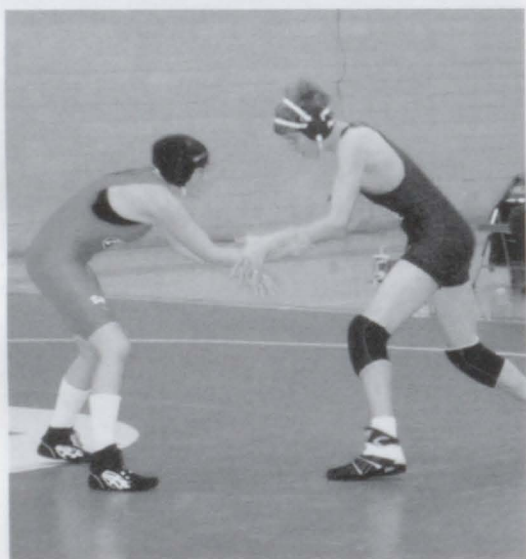

The long season of wrestling keeps most wrestlers in great shape and busy with two hours of practice every day. The average practice consists of about 20 minutes of running, along with hard drilling on the mats for one hour and 35 minutes. To finish off practice the wrestlers run segments, do a group huddle and have a word of the day. Dual meets once a week and invitationals on Saturdays helps keep the Big Red Wrestling Team busy. "To survive in this sport you really have to be dedicated or you won't last out on the mat," said Cora Armstrong-Blanchard.

Four year wrestler and Captain Nathaniel Edwards, was the sixth person in the history of Port Huron High School to achieve 100 wins throughout his career.

As a sophomore wrestling at a Varsity tournament, Tomas Navarro helped his team gain six points by pinning his opponent.

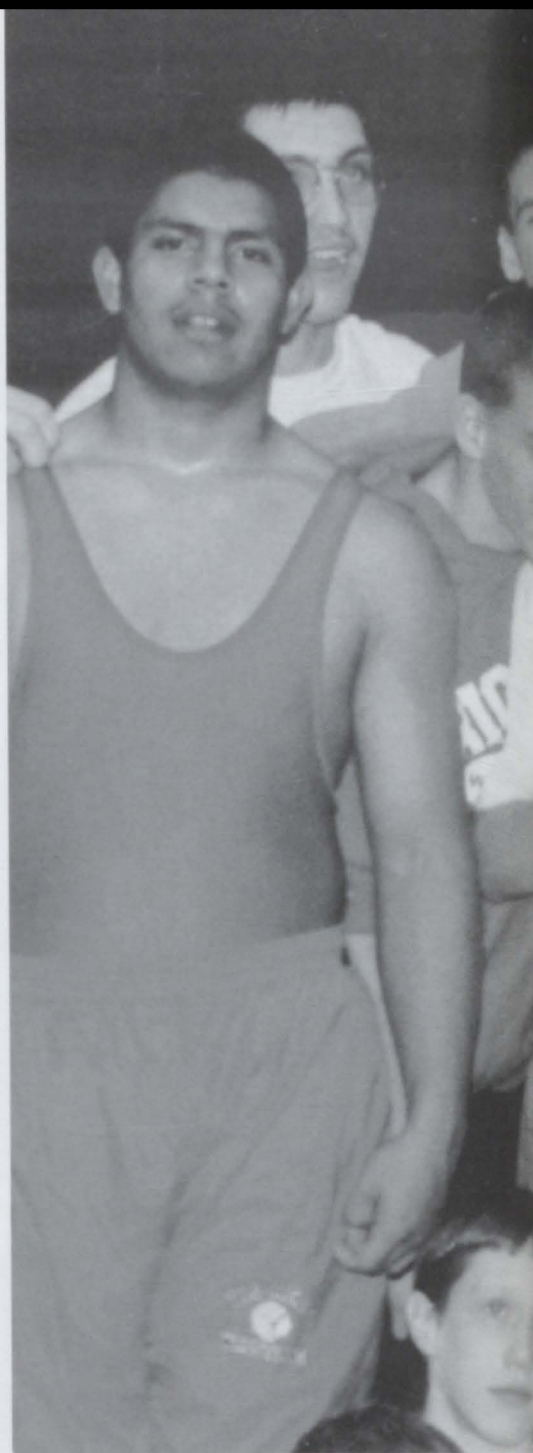

After winning second place at the Cros-Lex tournament, the Varsity team gathers together to show off their trophy.

A New Coach

Adding a victory to their league total compared to last year, they earned a 4-8 record under the new coach, Mr. Hodge. This was the first coaching experience for Mr. Hodge, who thought he would give it a try. The coaching position opened up after Mr. Berra left. Mr. Hodge's goals for the team this year were, "to instill discipline, integrity, and honesty in my golfers. We've made a good start this year."

Helping the team's effort were eight new freshmen, including freshman Richard Gutierrez who said, "I wanted to play with my uncle and dad just to enjoy the game." His most memorable moment as a golfer was,

One of the season's more memorable moments, according to Coach Hodge, was the tie-breaker that took place against Mt. Clemens. Unfortunately the Big Reds were unable to pull out a victory.

Every golf course has its own characteristics such as sand and water traps, so some become favorites. "My favorite course is Fore Lakes because it is so large and peaceful. It is relaxing and I can get some exercise", freshman Matthew Chapman commented. Freshman David Wingard had a difference of opinion. "My favorite is the Elks Club because it is a nice course and the people are really nice."

Sports Football Cheerleading Sports

We've Got Spirit!

With thousands of fans in the stands during some games the cheerleading squads had a lot of pressure on them. They had to project their voices to rev up the crowd, and cheer on the Big Reds. They also concentrated on staying in sync, and they successfully performed shoulder mounts to be sure not to drop one another. Whether it was cold, rainy, or hot they still had perform their cheers.

All three cheerleading squads practiced two hours a day, four days a week until the season ended. They ran, stretched out, and worked on their newest cheers at each practice.

The cheerleading teams had their positives and negatives as Junior Cassandra Brown pointed out, "I think that even though we didn't have a very good season, we as cheerleaders did great. We worked hard to get what we could get done."

Cheerleaders not only enjoyed the excitement and thrill of the games, but also the other events they participated in during school and after school. Junior Varstiy Cheerleader Misty Marsh commented, "The best thing about being a cheerleader is being in the parades, pep assemblies, and riding on the bus to the away games."

During the season two freshmen cheerleaders, Kelly Maxon and Amanda Mitchell moved up to the JV cheerleading squad after being on the freshman team.

Cheerleading

Basketball

"Go Big V, Go Big V, Big V's in the house," shouted the Girls Varsity Cheerleaders. Though the basketball game itself was the focus of most of the crowd, it was the job of the Cheerleaders to excite the school spirit from the sidelines. "I love having the best seat in the house," says Theresa Orr. Cheerleaders also had to know when to stop the cheering so it was not distracting players or fans from the action happening on the court. This requires some improvisation.

All of this was accomplished through practice and discipline, which included practicing about two hours a night and attending at least two games a week. The Varsity, JV, and Freshman teams all practiced separately, but each squad puts in at least six hours a week of practice. Attending the away games are the Varsity and JV squads, while all three cheered on the Big Reds at home games.

Dedication and teamwork were both crucial to the success of the Big Red basketball cheerleading squads. Even if the game took a turn for the worse for the Big Reds, the cheerleaders had a responsibility of boosting morale and more often than not, aiding in leading the team to victory.

Competitive Cheer

Trust

Competitive Cheer can be a risky and challenging sport. With cheerleading bases working to lift a squad member's body weight, they have to condition their muscles for greater upper body strength. Even so, back aches are common complaints. The fliers have to coordinate their moves carefully with their bases to avoid being dropped. Cheerleaders spend many hours a week trying to condition, develop their cheers, mounts, and moves.

At competitions, the cheerleaders contend in several categories: formations, mounts, stunts and cheers. At the end of the three rounds, the team with the highest number of points wins.

"I like the competition and the feeling I get when I know we did good, and tried our hardest. But the most important part is the friendships," said Brandie Warsalla.

The cheerleaders practiced five to six days a week for two to six hours a day. After learning the cheers, the squad put the finishing touches on them. They had competitions at Northern, Marysville, Cros-Lex, St. Clair, and then they had the Mac Meet.

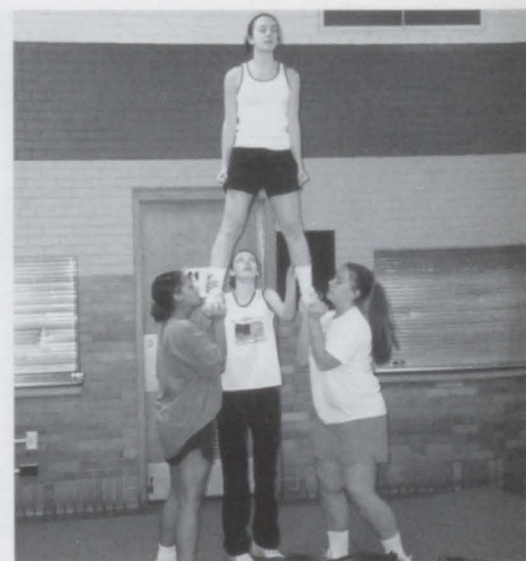

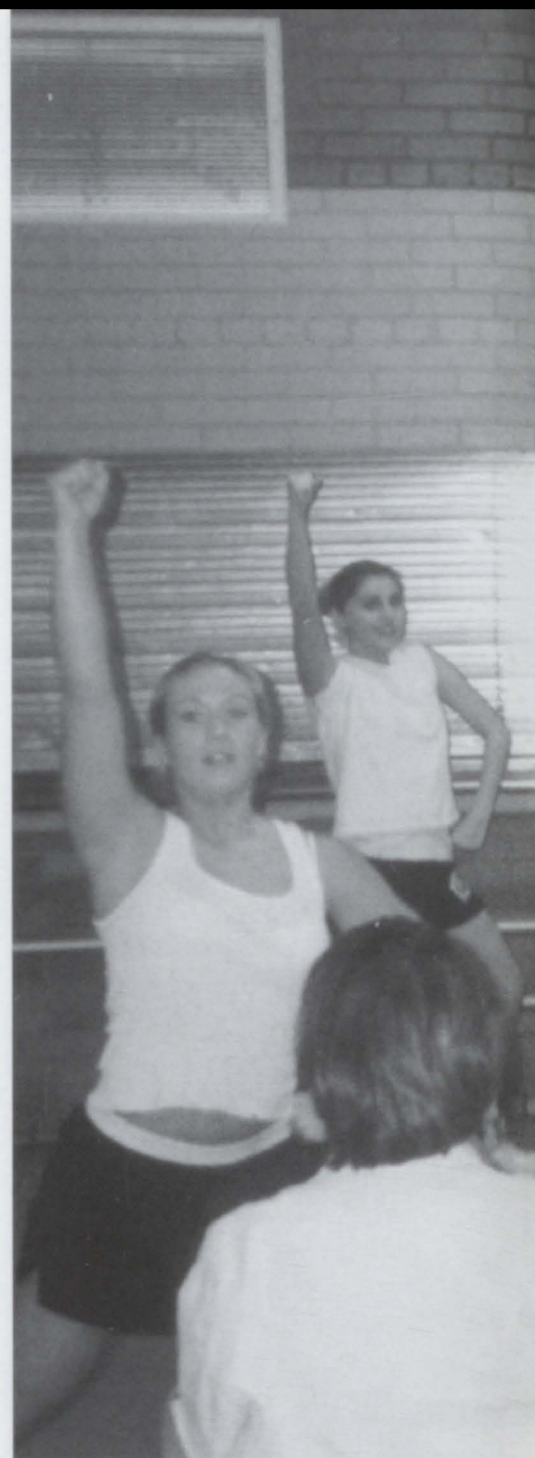

At an after school practice, Amber Taylor, Erin Miller, Nealy Kelley, Courtney Warner, and Nicole Churchill test their landing.

Balancing Amanda Tatro on one foot, Nicole Churchill, Erin Miller, and Courtney Warner work to refine their cheer.

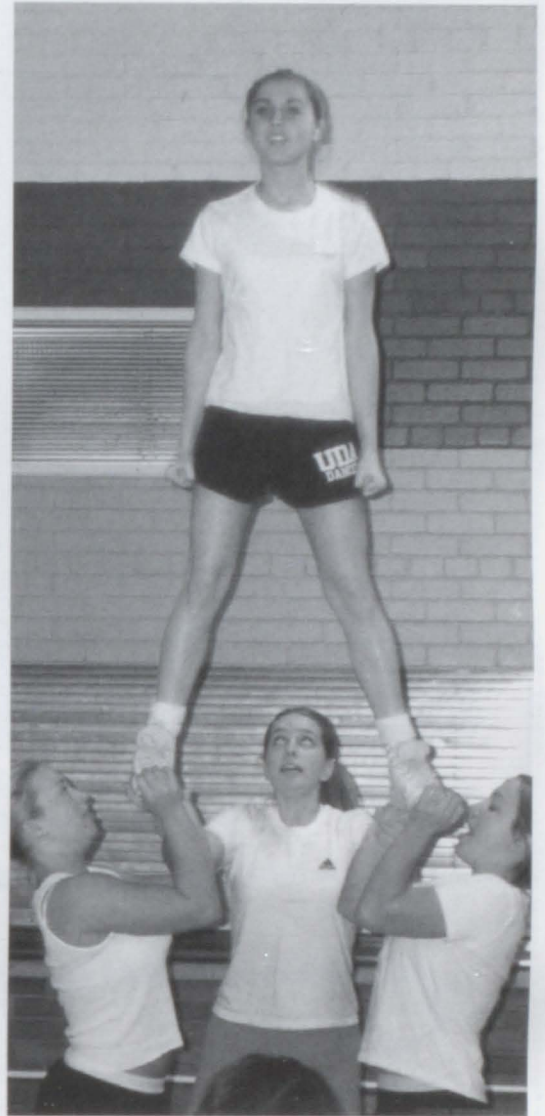

With Carrie Corturillo airborne, the competitive cheerleading squad practices their Universal Mount.

SPLAT

In 2000 a new sport was brought to the attention of many students. Paintball a game of stealth and tactics. It is opened to a wide variety of people of all ages and sexes. This sport can be played during all seasons and is playable indoors as well as out. While there are many forms of the game the most popular version played is a game of capture the flag. Two teams compete at capturing each others flag while protecting their own. "Paintball isn't something you can write about, you have to play it to appreciate it," commented Senior William Williams. While there are no specific requirements there are some safety regulations and equipment people should be aware of before they start to play.

Silver Sticks

Two Timers

The 36th annual International Silver Stick Tournament came to an exciting end on January 28th, as the Port Huron Flags Bantam AA team won their second championship in three years. The tournament lasted for three weekends, with the second weekend's games held in Canada, and ended on Super Bowl Sunday. The tournament drew teams from all over; both from the United States and Canada. Silver Sticks which was held at McMorran as well as Glacier Point was a popular activity for people to attend. Fireworks amazed the fans and players as the final score of 4-2 was displayed. Two students from PH were even a part of the championship team. Joshua Perkins and Stephen Smith participated in the Bantam A division which earned the treasured Silver Stick.

Shows and competitions on ice. Port Huron High School students Melissa Brandimore, Abbey Mosher, and Justin Williams were in the figure skating club. These students practiced their ice skating for different periods of time. One student, Melissa Brandimore ice skated for eleven years and went to the championships three times. On an average she practiced for twelve hours every week. This club offered the students in it the opportunity to participate in a variety of competitions and shows. These students usually participated in the Ice Fantasy's show and the Edith Shonerock competition. Students from a variety of schools join this club every year.

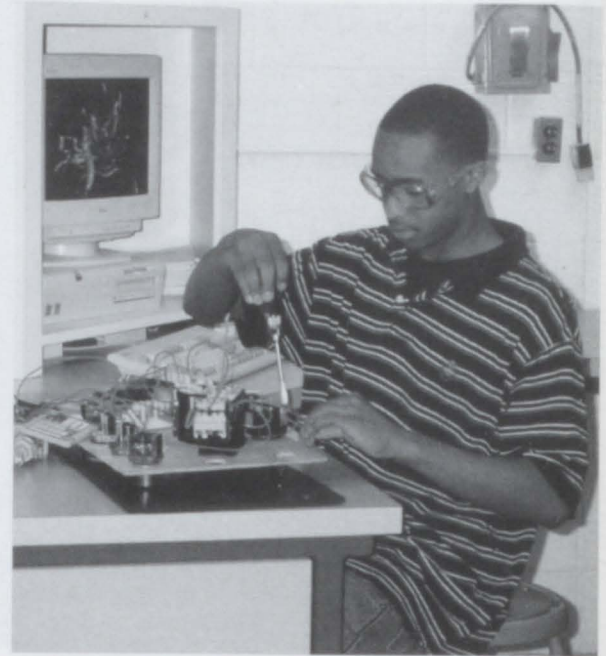

Technical Education Center

How it started

It all started in September of 1976. The St. Clair Technical Education Center opened. The building was built so that students could focus directly on the career of their choice. Students met with the same teacher every day for approximately 2.5 hours giving them a chance to explore their program of study in-depth. Students were given hands-on projects that led to certification in their specific career field.

Employer-Based Programs were developed to help students develop skills in specialized services and trade occupations not offered in Tec's standard program of instruction. Employer-Based Programs allowed students to travel directly to a job-

Friendships

Approximately 200 juniors and seniors from P.H. attended the Tec Center, along with students from other schools located around the county, sometimes as far as Algonac and Yale came to attend. Many friendships were formed with students from other schools over the course of the year. Shannon Shively suggested, "That the reason many friendships were formed was because you weren't judged by the other students there."

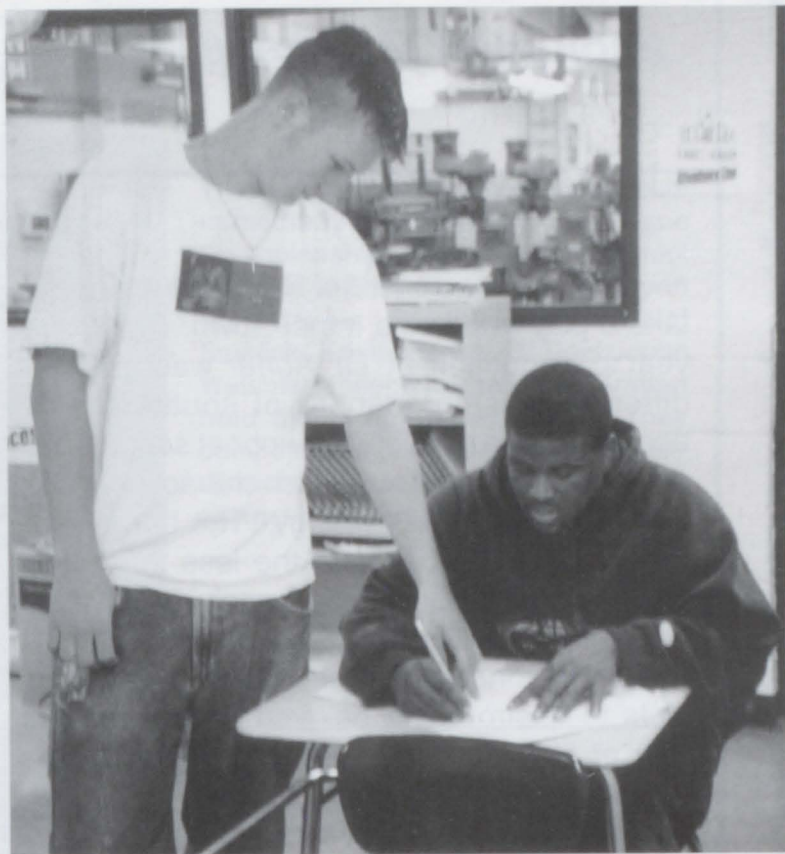

Many programs had parties during the year, which gave students time to interact with their peers in the class. Also each class was given 30 minutes a week in the commons area. Here, the students could purchase snacks and drinks. This also gave them time to talk.

Showing off their finished projects, welding students Angela Loxton and Samuel Henry stand next to their works of art.

Activities Around PHHS

Lil' Abner

It is characteristic of Drama Club to take a play and make it their own. This year's production of Lil' Abner was no different. A smorgasbord of southern accents and lazy hillbillies, upbeat songs and more than a few outlandish characters, the play bursted with energy. The basic storyline revolves around the less than alert citizens of Dotpatch, namely Daisy Mae (Autumn Shimer) and Lil' Abner (Adam O'Donnell). As the government plots to destroy their beloved town and way of life, underlying political wit and humor can be detected.

Adding to the chaos are a menagerie of of interesting Dogpatchers, including Mammy (Valene Herber) and Pappy Yokum (Bryan Collins), whose antics and spunky dispositions provided lots of laughs.

Senior foreign exchange student, Lea Widmer, comments, "I had a lot of fun participating in Lil' Abner, especially during the week we performed. There are a lot of 'crazy' people in Drama, but I love them."

Marryin' Sam leads the chorus in a song about the beloved founder of Dogpatch, Jubilation T. Cornpone.

Citizens of Dogpatch look on in amazement as they show their appreciation during "Rag Off'n the Bush".

Cast members clump on stage during intermission. Says Adam O'Donnell, "I've been involved with Drama Club for four years and enjoy every minute of it."

POD students from around the area worked at Kids Voting; a few from PH were Andrea Zauner, Sarajane Eppley, and Jason Morden.

Scraping his car after the major winter storm, Mr. Durecka braves the elements.

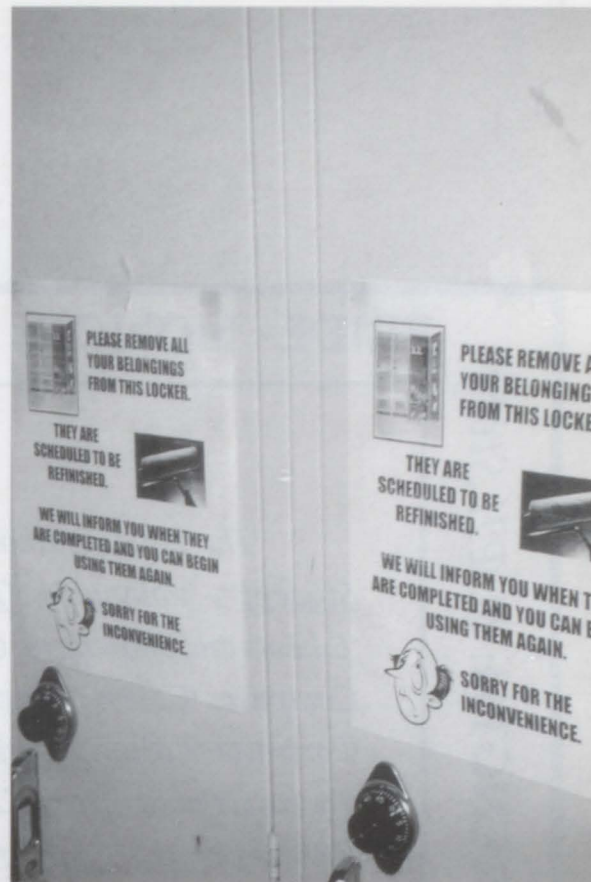

Seniors Chantel Miller and Sean Farquhar read their US News & World Report for newspots.

Warning students to take their belongings out of their lockers, these signs littered the hallways throughout the school year as locker refinishing was done.

Working at Jail and Bail to raise funds to get out of "prison," Patricia Ibarra, Melissa Tillery, and Jontel Moncrief use the phones to their advantage. PHHS met their goal of $5,000.

As the story of PH students concludes, one can only look back throughout the tale to see what was missing from the plot. With a popular flashback one can see the participants will remember two major issues for the year- the Presidential election and the weather.

POD students will always remember the grueling newspoint articles and lectures on the election. At least four months were dedicated to this topic because of the popular versus electoral college debate, not always to the delight of the seniors.

Some seniors devoted their time to work on the Kids Voting program which allows kids under 18 to practice voting in the same kind of situation as their elders would. Seniors from around the area allotted their time to work the booths to teach and encourage young students.

The setting changed a bit this year. Students had not one but four snow days in the month of December alone. It seemed as if the community shut down. By the third day all had cabin fever. Lesson plans had to change to make up for the missed days and delays due to weather.

One of the biggest successes for the year was the Can Food Drive where the Big Reds dominated. They collected 5,204 cans. It was a group effort that was just one of the charitable events during the year. The top three classes were awarded a pizza party. The Media Center group showed their selflessness by donating the money back to the cause. Two other events were Toys for Tots and Adopt a Family.

If the Can Food Drive didn't show our charitable, side Jail and Bail did. The Big Reds raised over eight thousand dollars and put the Huskies and Vikings to shame taking an early lead in pledges.

Remodeling began for the school as one by one lockers were being refinished. There was little surprise when students were told to clear out their lockers for a few weeks as the janitors began a long process of fixing the ancient lockers. Outdoor benches were added to give the area a more "homey" feel. There was even thought put into repairing the main sign.

One of the biggest kickers in the media was the talk that teachers would be given laptops. The state thought it would give teachers a better advance on teaching in everyday technology.

And even though this year wraps up another for students at Big Red Country, only one thing can be said for the PH Story.....

The 2001 yearbook staff of 30 members created this year's edition of The Student - Volume 96. The Student was under the direction of Mary Jane Zauner. Editors and Managers: Co-Editor-in- Chiefs Andrea Zauner and Dawn Marrocco, Computer Editor Jessica Albert, Sports Editors Stacy Thayer and Scott Dwyer, Portraits Editor Angela Zauner and Andrea Zauner, Academics Editor Sarah Fuchs, Organizations Editor Andrea Zauner, Student Life Editor Dawn Marrocco, Advertisement Managers Chantel Miller and Marci Morrison, and Business Manager Melissa Berish. There was a press run of 800 copies.

The Student has been an award winning publication for the last 19 years. Herff Jones Yearbook Company in Shawnee Mission, Kansas printed The Student. The cover was designed by Jessica Albert. The staff members included: Sara Apsey, Cora Armstrong, Sandy Campbell, Krystal Clor, Abby DeGlopper, Sarajane Eppley, Matthew Everhart, Sean Farquhar, Jeff Fogal, Jessica Graham, Benjamin Kraft, Jason Morden, Chereau Parham, Tim Ruff, Aerial Russell, Paul Shymko, Angelise Smith, Tara Smith, Nicole Steward, and Jermaine Walton. Photographers included: Tim Ruff, Sara Apsey, Aerial Russell, and Jermaine Walton.

A very special thanks to all our administrators, faculty members, and staff for their support and cooperation during the school year.

A very special thanks also goes out to all of our sponsors and advertisers whose funding makes the production of the yearbook possible.
